HITLER BANS SAFE CONDUCT FOR U. S. SHIP

1200 Americans Await Removal

STORY ON P/

NAZIS BAN U.S. REFUGEE SHIP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (INS)—Insisting that British waters are areas of military operations, the German government today refused to guarantee safe conduct for any American ship seeking to evacuate 1200 Americans from Great Britain.

NO. 2 MEN OF AXIS—In civilian attire for a change, German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop (left) and Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, take in the sights of Rome between talks on the Balkan situation. Ciano was recently reported to have led a bombing squadron into Greece.

Although the Italian government has agreed to such a proposal German officials notified the State Department that the Reich government is in no position to guarantee that such a voyage could be made with safety.

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy urged the State Department to send a vessel to bring home Americans who now are isolated in war-torn London.

The State Department made the following official announcement:

"The Department of State announces that a request was made of the German and Italian government to grant safe conduct for a United States vessel to proceed to a port on the west coast of Ireland to bring home 1200 American citizens still in Great Britain.

ITALY REPLIES FAVORABLY

"The Italian government responded promptly and favorably. A copy of the Italian reply was furnished to the German government with the suggestion that the government of the United States would be glad to receive similar assurances.

"After considerable delay the following note was received from the German government:

"'The foreign office has the honor to ackn-owledge receipt of the notes of Oct. 27 and Nov. 1 regarding the voyage of an American ship to repatriate American citizens in Irish ports.

"'On the basis of the position stated by the German government to the effect that areas around England are areas of military operations the Reich government is not in a position to furnish any sort of assurances of the nature requested.'"

RELATIONS MORE STRAINED

The German position referred to was taken several months ago when the United States asked Berlin for safe conduct for the steamer American Legion which was bringing American ex-patriates home from the Scandinavian countries.

Berlin then informed the State Department that although it could give assurance that its submarines would not attack the American Legion it would not be responsible for any tragedy due to contact with mine fields in the area around the United Kingdom.

It was understood in diplomatic circles that due to the re-election of President Roosevelt and the strained relations between the capitals of the United States and Germany, Lord Lothian, British ambassador, would hurry his return to this capital from London.

ITALY BEGINS BIG PUSH INTO GREECE

By the Associated Press

Italy's long-expected "big push" in the 11-day-old war with Greece was reported under way today as the Italian high command said Fascist divisions had advanced beyond the Kalamas river on the northwest battlefront.

The Italian invaders had reached the river eight days ago in their thrust from Albania.

Dispatches from the northeast front said the siege of Koritza, key Italian supply base 10 miles inside Albania, where 30,000 Fascist troops have been reported "trapped," appeared to be reaching a critical phase.

Unconfirmed frontier advices reaching Salonika yesterday said Greek mountain fighters, swarming down from heights around the city, had entered Koritza and captured thousands of Italian prisoners.

Military experts discounted the reports, however, pointing out that the Greeks would be in a more favorable position by clinging to the mountains — beyond reach of Italian mechanized forces.

According to International News Service reports 30,000 Italian soldiers had been killed, wounded or captured since Greco-Italian hostilities began.

Continued Greek advances were claimed on the western Macedonian front, where four field guns, nine mortars and 23 machine guns were said to have been captured from the Italians.—Editor's Note.

Both sides were reported rushing reinforcements to the Koritza

Ickes Offers to Quit; Cabinet Shakeup Due

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—Secretary Ickes submitted his resignation to President Roosevelt today, offering to step out of his Interior Department post when and if the White House chooses to accept it.

Ickes, who was one of the focal points in the Republican campaign attack, told his press conference he rejoiced in Mr. Roosevelt's re-election and in offering to resign acted only to give the President a free hand should he desire to make a cabinet change. Ickes acted similarly after the President's re-election in 1936, as is customary, but not all his colleagues in the cabinet followed suit. He said he believed that all presidential appointive officials should do as he had.

Reports indicated that sweeping cabinet and diplomatic shifts were in the offing. Those mentioned as slated for removal from the cabinet included Mrs. Francis Perkins, labor secretary; Henry Stimson, war secretary, and Atty.-Gen. Jackson.

Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court, says the New York Daily News correspondent here, may resign and be succeeded by Atty.-Gen. Robert H. Jackson, with Francis Biddle succeeding Jackson and Tommy "The Cork" Corcoran becoming solicitor-general.

NEW KENNEDY POST

It is generally conceded that Boston's Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, would not return to that country.

Kennedy is seen by many, however, as possible chairman of the national defense committee, a post not yet filled.

Only three of the President's 1933 cabinet remain—Ickes and Secretaries Hull and Perkins.

There seemed little likelihood that Hull would leave his post at the State Department. In circumstances to Hull's, with regard to

TREASURY TO ASK DEBT LIMIT BOOST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today that he would ask Congress to increase the national debt limit to 60 or 65 billion dollars to care for possible deficits up to June 30, 1942.

Announcing this at a press conference, Morgenthau told reporters:

"We've just begun to rearm."

He repeated the phrase three times to emphasize it.

The Treasury chief said also that Congress might be asked at the present session to make available for general financing the $4,000,000,000 which it authorized for special defense borrowing.

NEEDED FOR YEAR

That sum would be included in the 15 to 20 billions which Morgenthau said might be needed during the next fiscal year. The present debt limit, with this $4,000,000,000 included, is $49,000,000,000.

Asked whether it was conceivable that government expenditures could be put on a "pay as you go" basis shortly, Morgenthau replied: gress as soon as possible after the new session begins.

Morgenthau said that the next Congress would be asked to make all future issues of State and local securities subject to taxes. He said that in studying the problem he had learned that about $2,000,000,000 of tax-exempt state and local securities would mature next year.

"I don't think it's possible."

The Secretary said that with the old $45,000,000,000 debt limit "practically reached" the Treasury found itself "in a rather difficult position."

BEFORE JANUARY 1ST

He added that it would be "very helpful" if Congress lifted immediately the restrictions which it put on the $4,000,000,000 additional debt authorization before Jan. 1.

As for a general increase in the debt limit, Morgenthau said that he and Daniel W. Bell, Treasury undersecretary, would go before Con-

"I sincerely hope that Congress will make all future issues of non-Federal securities taxable," the Treasury chief said. "The time has come when we need money for national defense. We need an increase in the debt limit and meanwhile we want to increase the taxes."

Morganthau said that the Treasury would be the first to feel the impact of rising costs resulting from greater economic activity, but that "I do not fear inflation with Mr. Roosevelt as President."

The "necessary steps" will be taken, Morgenthau said, if prices get out of line. He said that he proposed to "shout it from the housetops" if some prices went wrong.

THE DAY AFTER—Wielding a trowel as his son, John, looks on, President Roosevelt, on the day following his third term victory, takes time out from receiving congratulations . . . to lay the cornerstone for the new postoffice at Hyde Park.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells Of Her Income, Outgo

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, lecturer, broadcaster, author and columnist, cheerfully told her press conference today that while she had "made a great amount of mony" she now had less principal than eight years ago.

The President's wife was asked whether, now that the election was over, she would discuss her income and outgo. She replied:

"There seems to be an impression in the minds of certain people that I have made a great amount of money and laid it up. I have made a great amount of money but I have not one cent of principal nor have I put one cent in investment since 1932."

Mrs. Roosevelt then added with a laugh that in fact she had less principal than in 1932.

MONEY TO CHARITIES

Much of the money that she had earned, she said, has gone into charities—some of it into wages and into loans to help people start small enterprises. Asked whether she charged interest she laughingly said "no."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had the feeling that if she did make money while in the White House that it should be spent for constructive purposes.

She added emphatically:

"None of my family has profited by anything I've made."

She said her charity donations exceeded the 15 per cent allowed by the Federal Income Tax, and further, tha tshe paid income tax on all her earnings.

Mrs. Roosevelt said the traditional diplomatic reception would not be held at the White House this year "because of war conditions in Europe and the feeling that it might be embarrassing for members of the diplomatic corps."

NO DIPLOMATIC DINNER

No diplomatic dinner was held last year, and Mrs. Roosevelt said this function again would be omitted this year.

The First Lady also said that because "War Springs, Ga., is too far away," the President and she would not go there for Thanksgiving as has been their custom. Instead, she said, they would be here at the White House or at Hyde Park, N. Y.

In discussing the winter social season, Mrs. Roosevelt said that

BUCKLEY BLASTS PARTY LEADERS, TELLS OF SNUBS

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Democratic leaders in Massachusetts came in for a pretty panning today at the hands of Thomas J. Buckley, state auditor-elect and the man they couldn't shake off or beg off.

Buckley, who was treated as a somewhat distasteful Cinderella by his stepsisters of the Democratic State Committee, told the Boston Evening American that "the committee are a pretty poor bunch of politicians and "tightwads" at that.

He named specifically Chairman William H. Burke, the Hatfield onion man, and State Rep. Paul (Third Term) McCarthy of Somerville, state committee treasurer, who won his third election to the House.

"They tried every available means, by hook and crook," said Buckley grinning, "to get me out of this election or prevent me from winning, but I topped them all.

LOST IN WOODS

"From Dever down I was just a lost man in the woods to the Democratic machine politicians.

"From the time I was an unknown in the primary campaign, I was snubbed by them and ignored by them.

"At the big rallies I was never invited. When President Roosevelt came to Boston, I wasn't invited to participate at the Garden.

"They even attempted to put me out of rallies on two different occasions. They wouldn't let me in because I didn't have any credentials—and they were the only

300,000 CHEER F. D. IN CAPITAL

By GEORGE DURNO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (INS)—President Roosevelt, elected to a precedent-shattering third term, was given a tumultuous reception by more than 300,000 today as he returned to Washington to lead the drive for national unity in a war-torn world.

Mr. Roosevelt, whose name will certainly be given a niche in American history along with those of Washington and Lincoln, arrived by train in the capital from Hyde Park, N. Y., at 8:25 a. m.

The nation's first third term President, who has already pledged himself to erase election scars and promote national unity, was cheered to the echo by the crowds.

The vast throng overflowed the broad plaza of Union Station to line—four and five deep—historic Constitution and Pennsylvania aves., the President's route from the station to the White House.

Police, National Guardsmen and firemen, more than 3000 strong, had roped off the plaza and the station to keep back the crowds.

On the plaza, a space was cleared for the President to make a speech to those who had turned out to greet him. Microphones of the three major broadcasting chains were set up long in advance to carry the President's words to the nation. They were stationed so that the President faced the majestic Capitol building as he spoke.

After waiting in the private car of his special train for a few minutes to greet his wife and other government officials, President Roosevelt, accompanied by Vice-President-Elect Wallace, went to the Union Station plaza to make a short speech. He said:

"My old friends of Washington:

"I think this means a great

Mayor of Marlboro Indicted for Bribery

Secret indictment of Marlboro's mayor and city solicitor on bribery and conspiracy charges in connection with alleged job-selling was revealed today through the Middlesex County district attorney's office.

The fact that Mayor Louis F. Ingalls and City Solicitor John J. Ginnetti were under secret indictment came to light when the office of Prosecutor Robert F. Bradford notified counsel for the two city officials to have them in Middlesex superior court at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

It is alleged by the government that Mayor Ingalls has sold two jobs in the Fairboro fire department, in each case receiving $5 before the appointment was made.

The government further alleges that City Solicitor Ginnetti was a go-between in each case and received the money, which he turned over to the mayor.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Albert Wunderley, who has charge of the investigation, said the government contends that one man who bought his job was Paul Lepore and another was Floyd W. Russell, now members of the fire department.

Investigation by the Middlesex district attorney's office, he added, has been in progress for six months.

Wunderley said the investigation is continuing in connection with the alleged sale of jobs in the school department and alleged bribes passed in the purchase of oil and coal.

SAY CHIEF INNOCENT

Further, the assistant prosecutor said, an indictment will be sought "on a charge of soliciting a bribe in relation to the appointment of the chief of police."

In this respect, said Wunderley, the alleged solicitation was related and no bribe was ever paid.

"The evidence shows," Wunderley said, "that Chief of Police Francis Bastien is entirely innocent of any wrong-doing in relation to his appointment as chief of police."

According to the prosecutor's office there are 12 indictments in the case; four against Mayor In-

Fitness of Draftees Army's First Care

Swift, yet reliable, physical examinations for the 532 Massachusetts conscripts reporting from Nov. 18 to 22 for a year's military duty were being prepared today by the Army's medical corps.

The Army plans to have each youth safely installed at Camp Devens for supper the same day he reports, yet have each one checked so thoroughly none will later be rejected as unfit.

The State's first conscript soldiers will report on assigned days excepting Nov. 21. There will be 384 accepted at the South Armory in Irvington st., Back Bay; 77 will report at Worcester and 71 at Springfield.

Army surgeons particularly stressed their precautions to avoid recurrence of mistakes in 1917 and 1918, when many disqualified men were shipped to camp, only to be sent home unsuitable, yet possessing full rights as war veterans.

If any of the one to five men sent by a draft board is rejected, the board must send a substitute from its files, the Army warned local draft boards.

'Local Boy Makes Good'—In 39 States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—One of the capital's business houses took a full newspaper page to say welcome home today to President Roosevelt.

NAVY YARD MEN GET PAY RAISE

General pay raises for civilian employes at Boston Navy Yard in a general raise which will increase wages of such employes $3,800,000 annually throughout the country were revealed today in Washington.

Recommended by a special naval board of review, the increase affects various types of laborers, helpers and mechanics. An estimated 44,000 employes will be affected in the nation. The civilian payroll at Boston Navy Yard now numbers more than 11,000.

Officers at the Navy Yard said they would be unable to give a schedule of increases here until the list arrives from Washington. The local board submitted the civilian employe list some time ago.

It was considered likely here that a considerable fraction of the increase will come to Boston.

The pay raise recommended by the special board was approved by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox shortly after its presentation today.

Mary Boland Badly Hurt In Auto Crash

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Nov. 7 (AP)—Sixty-year-old Mary Boland, one of the movies' best known character actresses, was seriously injured last night in a collision between her chauffeur-driven station wagon and another automobile.

Her physician, called from Hollywood, said she was "resting comfortably" today. He listed her injuries as several broken ribs, a dislocated left hip and a severe forehead gash. The chauffeur and driver of the other car were only slightly hurt.

Miss Boland was en route to Palm Springs for a rest when the accident occurred. With her were her two dogs, one of which vanished in the excitement. The other cowered unhurt in the wreckage.

Born in Detroit, Miss Boland made her stage debut in New York opposite Robert Edson in "Strong Heart." She was John Drew's leading lady six years and she became one of Broadway's favorites.

In the World War she appeared in numerous entertainments for soldiers in France.

U. S.-British Gold Standard Deal?

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—William Craven-Ellis financier and conservative member of Parliament, gave notice today that he would ask Sir Kingsley Wood, the chancellor of the exchequer, whether he had discussed with United States Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau a proposal that Britain return to the gold standard.

He also will seek to learn what conclusions, if any, were reached.

The question will not be answered until the next session of the House of Commons, perhaps next week.

The China Clipper took aboard additional fuel because of bad weather in the Pacific. It also flew four hours ahead of schedule.

Tells Judge Wife, Doctor Kept Trysts

When his wife went to a Swampscott doctor to lose her tonsils, he lost her, Walter S. Hall, 53-year-old Boston bank clerk, testified today in Suffolk Superior Court.

Hall, who lives in Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, was the first witness at the trial of his $25,000 alienation of affections suit against Dr. Adam E. Cole of Humphrey st., Swampscott.

The doctor, it is evharged by the bank clerk, held clandestine meetings with Mrs. Margaret L. Hall, 39, who was formerly Miss Margaret L. Kelly, a telephone operator.

The couple were married, Hall testified, Oct. 12, 1928, in St. Joseph's Church at Belmont. It was his second marriage, and it lasted until 1933, when they were divorced.

VISITS DOCTOR

In the summer of 1931 Hall and his wife took a room in Swampscott, Hall said, and a short time later Mrs. Hall went to see Dr. Cole and have her tonsils burned out.

As a result of the friendship that sprang up, the witness testified, he and his wife subsequently went swimming on occasions with the doctor.

Then, jumping in his testimony to 1936, the bank clerk said:

"In 1936 I pleaded with him to leave my wife alone and not bother her. He said he was sorry for me but there was nothing he could do."

The husband was asked if his wife had stayed out at night and he drew out a little notebook and began to consult it for dates. Most of the nights she remained out, or away, he said then, were Saturday nights.

On the night of Saturday, Aug. 15, 1936, he said, he saw his wife in the doctor's office and then saw the doctor put out the lights.

"I remained on the beach all night, sitting on a bench," the bank clerk said. "They didn't leave the house all night.

"The next morning, about 10 o'clock, the doctor got into his car parked in front of the house. My wife started to come out and saw me running across the street. She went back into the house and closed the door.

"The doctor signaled her to come out. I asked the doctor, 'What are you doing with my wife?' He said, 'Keep quiet; you'll wake the neighbors up.' He said, 'Get in the car.'

"We drove along, and on Commercial st. I got out. I asked her to come home with me. The doctor started the car up and I jumped back on the running board. He tried to push me off and scratched my nose.

"A policeman came up, and I said, 'This man has had my wife in his office all night.' Dr. Cole said he was a physician and my wife hadn't lived with me for five years. I said, 'She's been living with me up to last May.'

"In the meantime I lost my glasses in the car and the policeman got them for me and my wife drove off with the doctor."

CAR BREAKE DOWN

Hall testified to an earlier incident on Sept. 20, 1935, "during my nervous breakdown." He was going to Pemaquid Beach with his son for a rest, the witness said, but the car's rear axle went bad and he returned to Parker st., Brighton, where his wife then was living with her family.

"I saw the doctor come along with my wife in the car," said Hall. "I jumped up and said, 'What are you doing with my wife: taking her out again?' My wife slammed the door of the car and the doctor drove away."

Bank Clerk Hall testified that on March 23, 1936, he went to the Breakers Hotel in Lynn, where she was living. His son was with him and they saw the doctor's car parked in the rear of the hotel, said Hall.

Father and son, the former said, went to the sixth floor and Hall knocked on the door and they "heard running around inside."

"I looked under the crack of the door," said the witness. "It's been fixed since. I could see bare feet of a woman, up to the knees. I told them I knew they were in there, but they wouldn't answer.

"My son then drove me home. About 3 o'clock in the worning we drove back and I sent my son home. Just as I was about to knock on the door it opened. My wife came out and then slammed the door in my face.

TRIES RUSE

"At about 5 o'clock I knocked on the door and said I was the janitor. She opened the door slightly and I pushed it open.

"I saw the doctor lying on the bed in his shirtsleeves. It was a Murphy bed that had been pulled out in the middle of the room.

"He jumped up and ran into the closet where the bed had been. Then he came out and said, 'Now be quiet; let's talk this thing over.'"

"This seems agood place to stop," remarked Judge Jesse M. Morton, presiding in the jury case.

He declared a recess.

Son Who Chained Up Aged Mother Jailed

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—Gordon Carpenter, 34, Niagara Falls was sentenced to four months in jail today for what Niagara County Judge Raymond K. Knowles described as the "medieval practice" of chaining his 75-year-old mother.

Carpenter and his wife, Marcella, 31, pleaded guilty of a charge of "coercion and wilfully endangering the life and health" of Mrs. Irene Carpenter. Sentence was suspended on the younger woman. State Police found the elder Mrs. Carpenter chained to a wall in an unfinished room of her son's home last Aug. 8.

In $25,000 alienation of affections suit against Dr. Adam E. Cole of Swampscott, Walter S. Hall, 53-year-old bank clerk, declared that he lost his wife when she (pictured here) went to Dr. Cole for a tonsillectomy. Suit's being heard in superior court here.

Bogus Doctor Suspect Taken In Charlestown

Police were called to the home of an attractive, 25-year-old Charlestown woman today to arrest a New Brunswick man charged with posing as a doctor. He was also accused of representing himself as a federal agent.

He gave his name as Charles Henry Burkman King, 31, and on studying their records officiols found that a man by the same name had been deported in February of this year.

Deportation grounds were that King was an undesirable. Charlestown police said that the prisoner admitted his identity and said he had paid $150 to "an unknown person" to get back into the United States.

Immigration Inspector Elizabeth Golden was assigned to the case and Charlestown police promised to have all the facts collected for presentation to court tomorrow.

King was booked on charges not only of impersonation, but of assault and battery on Mrs. Sally Boudreau of Chelsea st., Charlestown. She is the mother of three children.

He gave an address in Asylum st., South End. Police said he had been to the house before today and had told Mrs. Boudreau, a WPA employe, that he had been authorized to examine her physically.

Stocks Spurt

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Stocks moved upward sharply today in a fast recovery from their post-election lows, some leaders advancing around $5 per share.

Wall Street analysis laid the sudden burst of activity to Secretary Morgenthau's request for an increase in the national debt limit, saying buyers evidently held such action to have inflationary implications.

Willkie to Carry On Crusade

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (INS)—Enjoying his first full day of leisure in many weeks, Wendell L. Willkie today began laying the groundwork for a continued battle for his campaign policies.

While yielding nothing in the philosophies he expressed in his campaign speeches and predicting their eventual adoption, Willkie was nevertheless pledged to national unity and complete co-operation with the defense program.

Willkie made it plain he believes the Republican party, of which he is titular head, should put up an intelligent, united and aggressive opposition to those of the Roosevveltian policies which it cannot accept. Willkie himself is to formulate the standards for this opposition.

Hub Dentists List Defense Facilities

All dentists today were urged by Dr. C. E. Rounds, president of the Metropolitan District Dental Society, to co-operate in a nationwide tabulation of dental resource s undertaken in connection with national defense purposes by the American Dental Ass'n.

Dr. Rounds urged that any dentist failing to get a copy of the 80-item questionnaire mailed to the 70,00-odd dentists in America by the association after a conference with army, navy and public health officials, should write the association headquarters at 212 East Superior st., Chicago.

"This is an important national service," the doctor said.

One aim of the program is to prevent stripping civilian populations of the dental care in calling dentists to military service.

Late Count Gives GOP Michigan

DETROIT, Nov. 7 (AP)—Revised unofficial presidential vote totals, now virtually complete, tipped Michigan back into the Republican column this afternoon. With three of the state's 3632 precincts missing, the vote was: Willkie, 1,028,087; Roosevelt, 1,025,774.

Belated returns from straggling precincts in out-state districts where the Republican nominee showed his greatest earl strength upset the advantage, never too substantial, that predominantly Democratic Wayne county (Detroit) gave the President midway of the count.

One state contest, for attorney general, was so close it appeared the outcome could be considered certain only after the official can-

Ashurst Pens Farewell Book

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Thousands of candidates for America's political offices were disillusioned, beaten men today, but the people can point with pride to one—Sen. Henry Fountain Ashurst—who's spending money to commemorate his debacle.

It's money out of his own pocket, too.

The Arizonian, defeated in September for renomination by the Democratic party to the Senate in which he sat for 28 years, is distributing a handsome booklet in which he tells all about his fall.

It's entitled:

"Farewell to the Senate."

Girl's Death Plunge In Lynn Is Probed

Two-fold investigation into the death of Miss Frances Fine, 20, who plunged to her death from the rear porch of her fourth floor apartment in Melhall street, Lynn, was begun today by police and Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Breed.

HOLDUP TRAP SET AT CAMP

CAMP EDWARDS, Falmouth, Nov. 7—With nearly a million dollars at stake, police and the Army today arranged an ambuscade for holdup men after a tip had been received that bandits might attempt to steal the huge payroll.

Probably because of the heavy guard and a special armed convoy escorting the $862,000 from New Bedford to the camp, no holdup attempt was made.

Had any such occurred in the vicinity of the camp, hidden soldiers and camp police, with rifles, bayonets and shotguns would have made short work of the robbers.

The original tip given to Army authorities was that a certain group of suspicious characters was in the camp area and that a holdup attempt might be made.

When the cash was conveyed today from New Bedford in the customary express car, 12 New Bedford police and detectives in three private cars and a smaller number of armed guards in a second armored truck accompanied the fortune.

At the entrance to Camp Edwards, the money truck was met by 10 camp police with riot guns, rifles and bayonets, with Capt. Ralph A. Price, provost marshal, and Arthur Hamilton, camp police chief, in chrage of this detail.

King Michael Blocks Magda's Extradition

LONDON, Nov. 7 (INS)—Former King Carol of Rumania successfully pleaded with his son, 19-year-old King Michael, to intervene on behalf of Carol's titian-haired favorite, Mme. Magda Lupescu, the London Daily Mail reported from Lisbon, Portugal, today.

The exiled Carol, telephoning from a Madrid hotel, talked with his son at Bucharest for half an hour, the mail said, adding that Michael used his royal prerogative to force either Premier Ion Antonescu to drop extradition proceedings against Mme. Lupescu.

NAZIS REPORTED RUSHING MILLIONS OUT OF U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (INS)—Germany is swiftly pulling up her financial stakes in the United States, well-informed sources reported today. The Reich began liquidation of her $110,000,000 holdings in this country in recent weeks, shipping the money home through her diplomatic outlets, it was learned.

Private as well as state funds are being shipped home. It was said that Germany is planning to finance her widely ramified diplomatic and consular services in the United States on a month-to-month basis.

Hottest speculation in "inside circles" is that the Nazi fear that the United States may freeze German assets in this country in the near future.

While there is no official indication of any such plan or intention on the part of the government, the machinery for freezing foreign assets is established an dready. Immobilization of the Reich's holdings could be accomplished at any time by executive order.

If any such action should be taken, speculators said that it might be on the grounds that German funds were being used for purposes inimical to the interests of this country. The position might be supported by findings of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Dies committee investigations.

Or some believe, the government might go further and freeze the assets of "aggressor" nations, as it already has frozen the assets of nine countries declared victims of aggression—Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Denmark, Netherlands, Belgium, France and Romania. In this case the action could be directed against the Axis partners rather than Germany alone.

Nazis Open Another Day Attack on Britain

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Sirens howled at noon today, giving London its first air raid alarm of the day after the longest night alarm of the war.

The raiders dodged defenders in the clouds to scatter bombs on the London area and vapor trails high in the blue-patched sky, coupled with the sound of diving and climbing planes, told of a battle over the capital.

The alarm sounded a few moments after the noise of a dogfight was heard. A lone Dornier (German) bomber dropped a stick of bombs on a southeast coast town a few hours earlier without causing any damage.

Light and heavy Axis bombers scattered bombs over a wide area of Britain during the night, ranging from the south coast to Scotland.

The all clear ended the first daylight alarm in London not long after the raiders were engaged by British fighters. Raiders later were reported over the Liverpool area.

A checkup after the long night raid showed that while damage was comparatively light it was more widespread than usual of late.

One bomb struck a famous London church where a number of women and children had sought refuge. There were some casualties but the number was not immediately known.

Berlin Suburbs Hit By British Bombers

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Long range British warplanes bombed the Berlin suburbs and a railway junction northwest of the German capital during the night, the air ministry reported today.

Attacks also were made, a communique declared, "on synthetic oil plants at Leuna and Hamburg, factories near Duesseldorf, the inland port of Duisburg and railway yards and junctions at Halle, Pretsch, on the Elbe, and near Cologne."

Other squadrons were said to have bombed long-range German gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez on the French coast.

The Berlin suburb attacked was identified as Spandau, where the air ministry said the raiders had attacked industrial plants. The Royal Air Force operations were described as "extensive."

British Shipping Heavily Damaged, Nazis Claim

BERLIN, Nov. 7 (AP)—German bombers smashed at four convoys off Britain today, authorized sources said, in continuation of heavy new blows against the British merchant marine.

London was attacked several times, the same sources said, reporting the British lost three planes to one for the Germans. Results of the attacks on the convoys were listed thus:

Northeast of Norwich: Six ships hit, two fired.

Off Harwich: A 5000-ton ship hit by two bombs.

South of Eastbourne: One British cruiser seriously damaged, a 4000-ton freighter sunk, a 5000-ton freighter hit and an armed escort vessel of about 10,000 tons bombed.

The high command chronicled similar blows all around England and well into the Atlantic yesterday.

It's communique told of Nazi warplanes attacking a convoy yesterday some 300 miles west of Ireland and of so severely damaging three freighters of about 6000 tons each "that their loss must be reckoned with."

No Irish Ports For Britain

DUBLIN, Nov. 7 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamonn de Valera told the Dail (Parliament) tonight that there can be no question of handing over Irish ports to Britain so long as Ireland remains neutral.

Prime Minister Churchill told Commons Tuesday that inability to use Irish ports as bases placed "a grievous burden" on the British navy in its task of patrolling the seaways.—Editor's note.

Britain Will Not Guarantee Rome Safe from Bombs

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)— R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today that Britain must "reserve full liberty of action in regard to Rome" since Italian fliers had bombed London.

The Italians began to bomb London from a base on the French side of the channel Oct. 24.

When Italy entered the war Mussolini's government declared Rome an open (or undefended) city not used for military purposes, in order to preserve its antiquities from destruction by bombs."

U.S. Cooperation Cited in Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7 (INS)—Closer cooperation between the United States and the British Commonwealth was forecast in the speech from the throne read by Canada's Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone, in opening the second session of Canada's 19th Parliament this afternoon.

"In the face of the common peril there has arisen a closer association and an increasing measures of cooperation between the United States of America and the nations of the British Commonwealth," the speech declared.

ITALIANS LAUNCH BIG PUSH

sector, with the Greeks still holding the heights above the Albanian town of Bigliste, east of Koritza, despite strong counter-attacks.

BIG BATTLE NEAR

A decisive battle, it was said, appeared imminent.

Greek and British warplanes bombed Koritza and Argirocastro, another Albanian town, while Italian bombers smashed at the Greek town of Phlorina with reported heavy casualties ensuing.

A laconic communique by Premier Mussolini's high command disclosed the start of the "big push:"

"The Kalmas river has been left behind our divisions. Our air force has added land operations with machine-gunning operations, hitting enemy works along the Ioannia-Kalibaki highway, in the Phlorina zone and near Lake Presba."

The Kalamas river roughly parallels the Albanian border from five to 15 miles inside Greece, in the northwest.

Belgrade dispatches said that Italian troops had made "small advances" along the Greek west coast, and that their columns were bombed by Greek planes.

troops have been forced to retreat on the Epirus front.—Editor's note.

GREEKS ADMIT RETREAT

Greece's high command acknowledged that Greek forces "retreated slightly" yesterday at the extreme lower (western) end of the 100-mile battlefront, in the Epirus sector along the Ionian sea.

Neutral Yugoslavia took a sharply stronger stand in the Balkan conflict with a government warning it would answer with "armed forces" any repetition of attacks on Yugoslav territory—such as the bombing of Bitolj by unidentified foreign planes Tuesday.

Germans in Greece Told to Leave Country

BELGRADE, Nov. 7 (AP)—Trustworthy advices from Greece today said that all Germans in Greece had been advised by German diplomatic officials to leave the country at once.

This move was interpreted in neutral diplomatic quarters as indicating possibly that Germany foresees no early fulfillment of the expressed hope for a quick settlement of the conflict.

Sixty-one members of the German commercial service in Greece arrived here. They had left Athens with the Italian legation staff.

Train service between Greece and Germany, which are separated by the length of Yugoslavia, has been at a standstill since the Italian-Greek outbreak.

CHILE WANTS HAND IN

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 7 (AP)—Chile hopes to assure herself of participation in any future development of Antarctica, informed sources said today in explanation of her official claim yesterday to all Antarctic territory between 53 and 90 degrees west longitude.

"BOSTON AFTER DARK," by George Holland, is a regular feature of the Boston Evening American.

Nazi Consul Refuses To Answer Hub Quiz

Claiming "diplomatic immunity," Dr. Herbert Scholtz, German consul in Boston, refused to answer a number of questions today before a federal auditor in a closed hearing in connection with the copyright on Hitler's book "Mein Kampf."

According to Atty. Philip Wittenberg of New York, counsel for Stackpole Sons, a publishing house, he had been questioning Scholz concerning the distribution of propaganda in this country when the consul balked and claimed immunity.

After his appearance at the hearing, held in the law offices of Hale & Dorr, 60 State st., Scholz said that "under Germany's friendship treaty with the United States, I was not obliged to attend the hearing," but had done so "out of courtesy and in a spirit of cooperation."

The consul maintained that the questions put to him were not pertinent to the issues.

Scholz, whose refusal to answer the questions brought a temporary suspension of the hearing, was called primarily to identify the signature of Franz Eher, Munich publisher, on documents delivering American publication rights to the Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston publishers.

A case relating to the American rights is pending in Federal court at New York and a deposition by the German consul here is expected to be filed in New York.

Counsel for Houghton, Mifflin said Scholz had identified Eher's signature at the private hearing, in session today for more than an hour.

STATE LOTTERY GAINS

Massachusetts awoke today to find on its doorstep the issue of a state lottery.

Unexpected popular approval of the referendum for a state-promoted and state-controlled lottery was registered in the 30 of the state's 40 senatorial districts where it appeared on the ballot. Vote strength ran from 2-1 to 8-1.

If the affirmative vote exceeds the combined negative and blank ballot total, state senators will find it mandatory to support it, according to Charles C. O'Donnell of Lynn, president of the Massachusetts Society for Old Age Persions.

$250,000 MONTHLY

The lottery was introduced on this year's ballot through efforts of about 1000 of the association's members. They link it with another referendum urging payments of $10 weekly to the needy aged.

O'Connell who directed the roundup of more than 42,000 signatures for establishment of both referendums on the ballot, expects it to yield $250 000 monthly and amply settle payment of $10 weekly to old age recipients.

Of the lottery's income, 50 per cent would go for prizes, 25 per cent to the aged funds and the last 25 per cent for expenses.

Final outcome of the balloting will not be known for several days.

CITES GAMBLING

In urging support for the lottery, President O'Donnell said:

"At present huge sums of money—some people say as much as $4,000,000 yearly—go to operators of the illegal numbers or policy racket and other huge sums have in the past gone for sweepstakes tickets in foreign sweepstakes. Under our plan the lottery would be conducted not more than once a month.

"People are going to gamble anyway. It is far better that they take their chances with a state-operated lottery than give their money to racketeers operating an illegal racket."

DEATH'S CUSTODY—Bunny Howard, night club singer, and her estranged husband, Frank J. Long, today lost to death their battle for 6-year-old Jacqueline Long, who died of a nervous ailment. Six weeks ago the couple brawled over the child in the hall of New York's Supreme Court building.

deal to both Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and to my wife and myself. It isn't as though we were new people. Your coming out after all these years means we get on pretty well.

"I want to tell you how very happy we both are to be back here for just a little longer.

"As you know, we like farm life, but of all cities, if we had to live in a city, we would rather that it be in Washington. I want to tell you how glad we are at the results of two days ago and how happy we are at the prospect of staying here just a little longer."

DRIVEN TO WHITE HOUSE

After the speech, President Roosevelt, followed by a long cavalcade of motor cars, was driven to the White House through the adulating throngs. He waved his hat again and again in response to their cheers. The Wallaces rode in the car with the President.

The President's weather luck held good. It was a beautiful autumn day—clear, crisp and sunny.

In the crowd that greeted the President were high government dignitaries, including cabinet members, thousands of federal workers, school children and just plain citizens. Washington's 90,000 school children were given a holiday for the occasion, and the capital's 140,000 government workers also were granted leave to greet their chief.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in a red ensemble, was waiting at the station to greet her husband. She had returned to Washington earlier.

Mr. Roosevelt remained in his private car for a few minutes before alighting. Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and other government leaders went aboard to welcome him.

WAVES TO THRONGS

It was the first time that the Secretary of State and most of the other officials had a chance to congratulate the President personally, since he was re-elected. The President spent election day at Hyde Park awaiting the verdict of American voters, and stayed on for a brief rest yesterday.

Mr. Roosevelt waved gaily to the crowd in the train station and talked and joked with photographers, reporters and radio announcers. Mr. Roosevelt looked at one radio announcer broadcasting an account of his arrival and said:

"Go to it, young man; you're talking against time."

Before leaving the train Mr. Roosevelt thanked the Negro porter and asked him to thank the rest of the crew on his special train.

Mr. Roosevelt also turned to Wallace to say in a stage whisper:

"I have my old campaign hat on."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to the old felt hat that he always has worn on campaign tours in the belief that it brings him good luck.

After his short speech to the crowd gathered on the station plaza, the President, in his car, followed by others containing cabinet members, newspapermen and others with the official party started toward the White House. As the car pulled away, a band struck up "God Bless America."

Then the procession from the station to the White House began. Everywhere the streets were jammed with cheering throngs. Hundreds of American flags were draped from buildings and thousands of persons crowded to the windows and on the flat roofs of office buildings to cheer Mr. Roosevelt.

At the entrance to the White House alone, between 4000 and 5000 persons were jammed. Inside the grounds the entire White House staff was gathered to welcome their "boss."

"WE WANT ROOSEVELT"

When the President arrived at the executive mansion, he went to the north portico to appear before the waiting crowd. The throng set up a chant, "We Want Roosevelt." To that, the President waved a greeting, but he did not speak.

From the portico, he went back into the White House to resume "business as usual."

For an hour after the President entered the house the big crowd remained about the White House grounds. The people demanded to see him again and at 10 o'clock Mr. Roosevelt came to the front door of the executive mansion on the arm of Maj.-Gen. Edwin M. Watson, one of his secretaries. He walked, bareheaded onto the porch and waved at the throng.

Satisfied at another glimpse of the President the crowd then broke up.

The celebration was all over in the space of 10 or 15 minutes the time it took for Mr. Roosevelt to be driven from the station to the White House.

But it was a great, spontaneous gesture by a great multitude to a man who had attained what no other American ever had. [illegible] the capital on the White House.

It was the greatest turnout of people since the Jazz days, [illegible] been nearly 4000 people [illegible] from their homes to watch the arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth of England on the arrival in Washington.

But the celebration of the President's return overshadowed the King and Queen's arrival. There had been two months to prepare

Hawaii Votes For Statehood

HONOLULU, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Hawaiian Islands, with their polyglot population, have expressed their desire for statehood.

With complete, unofficial returns from all precincts except the Island of Hawaii, Tuesday plebiscite gave 39,413 in favor of statehood and 19,911 against. There were 83,312 registered voters in the territorial population of 412,000.

Samuel W. King, territorial delegate to Washington, said he was "deeply gratified."

Next step on the long road to fulfillment of this wish will be a resolution from the Hawaiian legislature petitioning Congress for statehood.

Republicans elected eleven of the twelve territorial House members and two of the three Senate members.

DAYLIGHT SAVING OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Californians decided to continue setting their watches by the state's widely advertised sunshine, and defeated a daylight saving proposition by a vote of about two to one.

holding posts of especially current importance, the Secretaries Stimson and Knox.

Secretary Morgenthau gave reporters today a possible indication he expected to remain at the Treasury when he spoke of going to the Hill for asking the next Congress for another increase in the national debt limit.

HINT JONES SEAT

Secretary of Commerce Jones, it was said, probably would not have gone to the trouble of waiting for Congress to enact special legislation for him to hold that job as well as the federal loan administrator's, had he regarded the secretaryship as a post of brief tenure.

There was conjecture about Secretary Perkins, whose regime at the Labor Department is derided with the A. F. of L.-CIO split, and there was nothing definite about the future for Agriculture Secretary Wickard, Postmaster General Walker and Attorney General Jackson.

Secretary Perkins was definitely "on the way out," the Daily News believed, but the proposal to replace her with Sidney Hillman, CIO vice-president and defense board member, was meeting with plenty of opposition behind the scenes.

"Insiders whisper that Edward J. Flynn is scheduled to step out as national Democratic chairman," say the story, "receiving the appointment as postmaster-general."

STIMSON TO SHIFT

Stimson is already believed ready to retire or move over to the newly created position of co-ordinator of national defense, with the name of Mayor LaGuardia frequently mentioned as Stimson's successor.

If "Boss" Flynn goes in as post-office chief and out as national chairman, it will be breaking precedent, but so is this third term.

Chief Justice Hughes will be 79 next April 11, and reports have been current for a long time that he may retire.

"Today, through the correspondents at this press conference I wish to address a friendly inquiry and also an invitation to the newspaper publishers of this nation.

"We have just come through a great presidential campaign with the results that you all know. During the campaign much was said of the function of a free press in a democracy. Now we find, according to Editor and Publisher, that eight years ago our citizens elected a President who was supported by only 49 per cent of our daily press.

"Four years ago we elected a President who was supported by only 36 per cent of the press. Last Tuesday, we elected a President who was supported by less than 34 per cent of our daily press.

"This reveals an unprecedented and progressively perilous situation requiring public consideration. Although we are fortunate in having free communication over the air, I am convinced that our democracy needs, more than ever before, a truly free press that represents no class or economic group and this will rewin the confidence of our citizens because it is worthy of rewinning that confidence.

"As the heat of political controversy dies and the wounds of strife heal and we seek national unity in this crowded hour of our history, there comes a great opportunity to our publishers to meet this challenge.

"I commend the situation to them for calm self-examination. I invite them, through their columns, to comment."

Polar Cold On Way Here

It may have been a little cold today, but it's going to get colder before it gets warmer, the Boston weatherman warned today.

Reports from the weather bureau warned motorists and others likely to be affected by sudden drops of temperature below freezing that strong currents of cold polar air are advancing on New England behind a disturbance of considerable intensity.

RECOUNT EXPECTED

Former Mayor J. F. I. Thomas of Lynn was expected in Salem today to seek recount of votes in race for Essex County Commissioner in which he failed to win by 340 vote margin.

A GREAT NEW FORD RIDE!

• When you try a new Ford, you'll find something very much more than just an improved ride. You'll find an entirely new Ford ride! A soft, level, gentle ride . . . front seat or rear, over good roads or bad . . . that's fast becoming one of 1941's most talked-about developments. Here are some highlights on how this new ride was achieved. Never before in Ford history . . . perhaps never before in any one new car . . . have so many major new developments been applied at once to riding comfort in a new car.

INCREASED WHEELBASE and springbase in the '41 Ford car provide the basis for a better, softer ride!

NEW SPRINGS both front and rear are softer in action, slower in what engineers call "vibration periods."

A NEW FRAME 100% more rigid than before, cuts body and frame "weaving," increases comfort and quietness.

NEW BALANCE between front and rear spring action levels the ride—reduces "pitching" over bumps.

NEW SHOCK ABSORBERS permit softer adjustment front and rear than ever before.

A NEW STABILIZER perfected by Ford, makes it possible to use softer springs, more flexible shock absorbers and minimize sidesway.

MASSIVE NEW BODIES on '41 Fords have up to 7" greater seating width, bigger windows, greatly increased rubber cushioning.

Prices start as low as $740.00 and delivered in Boston — Completely equipped

Buckley Raps Party Leaders for Snubs

ones who could give me credentials.

"One thing I'm going to make sure of, if it is humanly possible—there'll be a change in the state committee setup if I can possibly do anything about it. They'll have to recognize me now, and perhaps they'll be glad if a recognize them."

Buckley, who received more votes (919,152 thus far, with 30 state precincts still missing), than any other Democrat on the state ticket except Sen. David I. Walsh and Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever, smiled a little when he said that the Democratic leaders refused to do any financing of his campaign.

They gave him the merry run-around, particularly Onion Man Burke and Third Term McCarthy, the new auditor-elect said, and when he suggested the allocation of a bit of cash, Burke and McCarthy would always put him off with:

AID REFUSED

"Come back later and we'll see what we can do."

And never—said Buckley happily—did they do anything.

"But money isn't needed for a campaign," he declared. "In fact, I've found that the less money you have, to a certain point, the better off you are. What the public wants is facts."

Buckley, leaning back in a chair at the Cape Cod inn where he is resting, revealed that he spent only $82 to win his election. And here, he explained, is how his campaign was conducted after the machine Democrats shunted him into the Cinderella corner.

In the car of his brother, Bill, recently pensioned Boston policeman, the two would visit a town, nail up placards and banners and then go around talking to people—the chief of police, because of Bill some painters working on a house, the storekeepers and the general public, through house-to-house calls.

HOMEY GATHERINGS

Sometimes a little house rally would be organized informally here and there, and then Buckley and his brother would talk, just as informally, to the homey gatherings. No speeches; just talks!

Afterward the Buckley brothers would go around and take down their placards and banners and move on to another town.

"It was just like being an advance man for a circus or a show," said the auditor-elect.

The money for these trips was furnished by a "chiping-in" process. Buckley had a dollar or two to spare, his brother had a few chips to contribute, friends donated a dollar here and two there.

Gasoline, oil and meal were the only expenditures. No big advertising, no expensive radio time, no sound cars to offend the ears—and no blather!

The only big Democrat who was friendly to him, Buckley said, was Congressman John W. McCormack of South Boston, and he was a warm friend indeed.

Buckley said McCormack told him that in the event he did not win the election, the Congressman would take him to Washington and see that his go-getter talents were well employed at the capital.

But the most of the other Democratic politicians, said Buckley—Phooey!

He said that he wished, through the Boston Evening American, to express his thanks to the voters who had supported him and to promise them that he will not let them down in the auditor's office.

"I may have been a surprise to a lot of people through the campaign," he said, "and maybe my efficiency will also surprise them."

Told that he had defeated State Auditor Russell Wood by more than 41,000 votes, the 45-year-old Buckley thanked every Bay State man and woman who had voted for him.

'NOT WANTED'

"I don't know why State Democratic Chairman Burke and other members of his committee didn't seem to want me around," he declared.

"I had ideas of campaigning all my own. I like to go out to talk with people. It perhaps would have been better if a few more of the ticket had done the same thing.

"I shall rest with friends for a few days and then I'm going to refrace my steps about Massachusetts and personally thank all the loyal volunteer workers who brought me victory."

Buckley said the election gave the best answer to earlier charges that he was riding in on the name of Thomas H. Buckley of Abington, the former state auditor and now assistant collector of internal revenue.

"HE'S AN AUDITOR"

Campaigning under the slogan, "I'm no orator; I'm an auditor," Buckley said of his opponent, Russell Wood, "he's an orator."

"I'm sorry the other Democrats on the state ticket, except Senator Walsh, failed to come through, especially Paul Dever," he said, "but maybe the party will come back to the State House two years from now if they follow my example and campaign the way I did."

NO CHANGES

He said he planned no changes in the state auditing department.

"Any employe doing his work has nothing to fear from me," Buckley stated.

Wearing a natty double-breasted blue suit and light green topcoat, the candidate listened to election returns at the home of a friend, and at no time seemed uncertain of the outcome.

galls, four against Ginnetti and four against the two officials jointly.

GRATUITY ALLEGED

One indictment against the mayor charges that on or about May 23, 1938, he corruptly accepted a gift or gratuity from Russell, under an agreement or understanding that Ingalls, as mayor, "would make a certain appointment."

A second indictment contains similar charges, except that Lepore is named.

Two more indictments against the mayor accuse him of corruptly requesting bribes in these two cases.

In all four indictments against City Solicitor Ginnetti, he is charged with being an accessory before the face.

The other four indictments charge Ingalls and Ginnetti with conspiring to request and accept bribes.

Atty. John E. Rice of Marlboro is counsel for the mayor, while Atty. Asa S. Allen of Boston represents Ginnetti.

Jeanette Rankin Returns to House

Missoula, Mont., Nov. 7 (INS)—Miss Jeanette Rankin of Missoula was back in the political spotlight today after 22 years of oblivion, as she regained the place in the U. S. House of Representatives she held from 1916 to 1918 as the first woman ever elected to that body.

Her election in 1916—back in suffragette days—was something of a nation-wide sensation. Her re-election this year on the Republican ticket was accomplished over an opponent who, as a former Montana representative, gained a measure of fame for himself. He is Jerry O'Connell of Butte, youngest congressman in the nation from 1936 to 1938.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells of Income

because the press of work on the President was so heavy, it had been decided to hold small dinner for departmental heads, preceded by a departmental reception, instead of the usual large dinners and large receptions. The guests at the dinner would be confined to heads of the departments.

Mrs. Roosevelt also said that tomorrow the White House, which has just been repainted, would be reopened to tourists.

G. O. P. Challenges 4000 Boston Votes

With Democrats seeking a recount of the vote that gave Gov. Saltonstall re-election by 9057 votes, Republican leaders today were ready to counter with court action in their challenge of 4000 votes in Boston wards.

If the recount should be close a move will be made to invalidate the challenged Boston ballots, it was stated.

Meanwhile, State Police remained on 24-hour guard duty over ballot boxes in a dozen cities as Democratic leaders prepared for recount in one of the most heated gubernatorial battles in years.

While Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever congratulated the governor and seemed content to accept defeat, he made it plain that he would abide by decision of the Democratic state committee to petition for the recount.

Final vote was Saltonstall 997,280, Dever, 988,228.

While Gov. Saltonstall weathered the Democratic sweep, the Bay State today found Republican strength whittled in many places.

"MYSTERY MAN" WINS

First there was the surprise victory of "Mystery Man" Thomas J. Buckley, former WPA worker, who sailed to a 41,294 vote victory of State Auditor Russell Wood.

Of perhaps greatest importance, from a Democratic standpoint, was the tying of Gov. Saltonstall's hands by passing him an Executive Council with a Democratic majority of five to four.

In addition, Democrats gained at least four seats in the State Senate and several in the House.

LUCE DEFEATED

Nationally, Massachusetts lost a Republican congressman with defeat of Robert Luce of Waltham by the New Dealer, Thomas H. Eliot of Cambridge, grandson of a Harvard president.

Eliot's margin of victory was 79,548 to 71,026.

Even before the final count was announced, Dever conceded the election to Governor Saltonstall, in declaring:

"Judging from unofficial returns the Governor has been elected. While my personal inclination would be to abide by the vote, consideration of party leaders and my friends makes necessary a recount and steps toward that end will be taken."

At Dever's request, State Police were ordered by Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney to guard ballots in the Republican strongholds of Newton, Melrose, Winchester, Brookline, Quincy and Braintree.

His request followed announcement of Edward Sirois, State G. O. P. chairman, that he had requested State Police be sent to guard ballots in the Democratic cities of New Bedford, Cambridge, Lowell, Revere, Chelsea and Springfield.

After Mayor George T. Ashe of Lowell had refused to take action on Sirois' request that local police guard the ballots there, McSweeney was called upon to order State troopers into the city to guard them.

Police Commr. Timilty ordered three shifts of Boston policemen, two on a shift, to guard ballots at City Hall, with Detectives Paul Crowley and John Tobin of headquarters also on duty during the daytime.

Question of the election will unquestionably go before the State Supreme Court before it is finally settled, the court must rule individually on at least 4000 challenged ballots of Boston voters, which might have important bearing on the final result.

It is probable that the questioned ballots, upon which precinct wardens required both the challenge and challenger to sign their names, will be ruled upon before the official recount is undertaken.

The Governor had held up his statement for nearly 12 hours after returns had first indicated he would be elected until he was sure of the result.

As returns from Boston were completed shortly after midnight and showed Dever receiving a bad knifing in his greatest stronghold with a plurality of but 61,691 in the city, Saltonstall was leading by more than 30,000 votes in the combined State vote.

Under ordinary voting circumstances such a lead would be multiplied outside of Boston.

But an amazing and unpredictable turnover of votes outside of Boston began cutting sharply into the governor's lead. It became evident that the issue would not be settled until the last ballot was counted.

As the counting progressed the lead was steadily and threateningly cut until at one time the margin was a scant 4000, with less than a dozen precincts to be heard from.

A recount may be asked for and legally must be held if a candidate for state office receives a plurality of less than one per cent of the total vote cast for that office. There were 1,975,363 ballots cast for governor in a record smashing drive, which under the law would necessitate an official margin of 19,753 or a recount.

KEITH'S 'LONG VOYAGE HOME' REVIVES AGE-OLD THEME

Sea Epic Stays Second Week

The possibilities for different motion picture plots have been variously estimated at seven 13, 23 and 191. Yet not one of these compendiums takes into consideration the oldest and most famous story-pattern in the world, one that has continued, fundamentally unchanged, to be popular almost since the dawn of time.

This is the plot that could have no better name than "The Long Voyage Home," which is the title of John Ford's new motion picture and the most modern treatment of this age-old theme. It is continuing through next week on Keith Memorial screen.

Homer's Odyssey is, of course, the prototype of all succeeding stories on the subject. This classic saga, though not the first, was the greatest of the early tales about man's eternal struggle to return to his native land, and the adventures he encounters on the way. It took Ulysses, you will remember, ten years to make his long voyage home, which still stands as something of a record.

The annals of literature are crowded with similar examples. Gulliver, the Ancient Mariner and Captain Bligh are three of the most famous of these prodigal patriots, but there are many more. And all their histories, though different each from the other, conform to the original model.

So does "The Long Voyage Home" itself, though its characters are members of the crew of a British tramp steamer, and their experiences are inextricably bound up with the events of the modern war. Their story is nevertheless a 20th century Odyssey, with Thomas Mitchell in the role of a contemporary Odysseus, and Eugene O'Neill (who wrote the one-act plays on which the film is based) performing the service of the blind bard.

The returning-traveler motif has several conventions to which all such stories must adhere. Invariably, the trip home is by sea, and storms must play their part in delaying the voyagers.

This is true of "The Long Voyage Home," one of the most spectacular sequences of which is a gale which rocks the S. S. Glencairn as it crosses the Atlantic. Then, too, the characters must be men. Women, whether Circe of Carmen Morales (as in the Ford production) can never play more than an incidental part in the proceedings.

The third rule is that the hero must lose one or more of his pals before he reaches port. Everyone remembers how Ulysses' crew was depleted by the appetite of Polyphemus, and in "The Long Voyage Home" the Cyclops' job is done instead by a Nazi pursuit plane which machine-guns Ian Hunter, and by the storm which kills Ward Bond.

JOHN WAYNE, the gentle, powerful Olson; Thomas Mitchell, the roaring, truculent Driscoll, and Ian Hunter, as Smitty, the heartsick, contribute heroic performances to "The Long Voyage Home," John Ford's modern Odyssey fashioned out of Eugene O'Neill's four short plays of the sea. This magnificent drama is continuing a second week on Keith Memorial screen.

'Knute Rockne' for Scollay, Modern

"Knute Rockne—All American," starring Pat O'Brien in the role of the famous coach who made the name of Notre Dame a national football toast, will top the Scollay and Modern screen bills, starting tomorrow. Featured with him are Donald Crisp, Gale Page and Ronald Reagan. The second feature is "Calling All Husbands."

JOE AND LAURIE know all the right people in the wrong part of town in "East of the River," the Paramount and Fenway feature this week. John Garfield and Brenda Marshall portray these smart, tough young people.

John Garfield Goes Tough On Para-Fenway Screens

John Garfield is starred as the tough guy who wants to "live" without working in Warner Brothers' "East of the River," opening today on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

The story of New York's tough neighborhoods also features such prominent players as Brenda Marshall, Marjorie Rambeau, William Lundigan and George Tobias.

The impelling drama revolves around John Garfield, East Side tough, and his foster brother, an aesthetic boy in spite of his environment, and Mama Raviola, whose strong hand straightens out the complications that set in their lives.

The fast action of the drama follows Garfield to California, where he falls in love with Miss Marshall—then to San Quentin—then back to New York with his girl. When Garfield gets into another scrape, Brenda is through with him and falls in love with his foster brother, Lundigan. Garfield tries to break it up.

Mama steps in, slapping more sense into the boy than his 20-odd years have given him. He puts himself on the gangsters' spot to stay in town to see Brenda and Bill married.

The second feature, "Always A Bride," features Rosemary Lane with George Reeves, John Eldredge, Virginia Brissac and Francis Pierlot. Noel Smith directed.

Diane King Stars On Casino Stage

Burlesque's Diane King is queening it this week on the Casino stage. Also contributing to the pulchritude are Lili Sorrell, a Parisian-perferred brunette, and Carola, a talented teaser. For laughs, there is Joe Freed, now in his sixth week at the Hanover st. burlesque house and still going strong. Aiding him in his shenanigans are Bobby Fay, Freddie Walker and Elinor Walent. Other Casino favorites of the week are the Abdallah Girls, 16 of 'em.

Globe to Offer 'Crazy Show'

Entirely new to the Hub and guaranteed as entertainment-plus is Russell Trent's "Crazy Show," wacky burlesque revue due at the Globe Theater tomorrow.

Strips and stripes are said to be its keynote. Outstanding in the beauty department is to be Marion Morgan, delectable favorite of the past season. Other eye-magnets in the forthcoming flippant divertissement will be Jean Eugene and Rita DeVere, as well as those pulchritudinous 30 Bernardolls.

Trent, who is to reign over the comedy department, will have as assistants Harry LeVan, Bobby Vail, Harry Ryan and Irving Benson.

Others in the extensive company will be Lettie Boles, Will Hayes, Buster Boles and vaudeville's Three Drews, Thornton and Reed, the Tahiti Tweets and many more.

Topping the accompanying film bill will be "Gunga Din."

The radio amateurs will be an added feature of tonight's show, which features Bozo Snyder and Joan Dare, who will be playing the week's final performance.

ELECTION over, votes counted, President Roosevelt returned to office for four more years, millions of Americans are asking:

What about the pre-election polls that presumed to forecast the electorate's will and preference?

How accurate were these ballot box seers?

Persons who take time to compare the unofficial polls with the actual ones in the forty-eight States know the answer.

With the conspicuous and almost lone exception of the Crossley Poll, published exclusively in the Boston area by the Evening American, the guessers and analysts were in many instances like the hunter with myopia.

They aimed, but they did not hit.

Said Archibald M. Crossley, head of Crossley, Inc., international research organization:

"Everything considered, Roosevelt is expected to be the winner, and he may have a very substantial electoral majority."

The President, taking thirty-nine States and adding substantially to his Congressional strength, did exactly that.

BUT—and this is no little but—what about various other polls?

Said Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, in an election eve forecast:

"On the basis of today's results either party could claim victory on Tuesday, depending on the breaks in certain areas."

Dr. Gallup had previously explained:

"The evidence from the Institute's own early studies on the campaign provides recent confirmation of the fact that a Democratic candidate with 52 per cent is in a precarious position.

"In two surveys in August the Institute found Roosevelt with 51 per cent in popular votes, but Willkie actually leading in electoral votes, with 304 on one occasion and 284 on another. It takes 266 to win . . ."

MORE POSITIVE was David Lawrence, publisher of the United States News in Washington, forecasting his seventh Presidential election and commanding an impressive audience because of his reliable prophecies in other years.

Mr. Lawrence saw a Willkie victory with a minimum of 278 and a maximum of 335 electoral votes.

Less positive but more accurate was the Fortune Magazine survey, which said the possibilities indicated by its figures ranged from a substantial victory for Roosevelt, but not a landslide, to a narrow victory for Willkie in the electoral college, without a popular majority.

Still less positive was the Wall Poll, headed by Edward J. Wall, director of the American Opinion Forecasts, Inc.

This group found the two candidates heading into the home stretch absolutely neck and neck and concluded:

"No poll is scientific enough to measure the refinements or predict the outcome of a contest so close."

The New York Daily News straw ballot men entertained a similar thought and stated:

"Roosevelt will win the State (New York) by a plurality over Willkie so small that the race is a photo finish."

VERY EMPHATIC was General Hugh S. Johnson in his syndicated newspaper column.

Waxing prophetic in a big way, the General boomed:

"The result is no longer in doubt. Willkie will win."

The Chicago Daily Tribune, in its Midwest poll, was milder.

The Tribune reported that Willkie had 50.8 per cent of the 128,055 votes its analysts had tabulated in Illinois.

Meanwhile, the Dunn, Hurja and Pearson-Allen (Washington Merry-Go-Round) releases all agreed that Willkie would carry as a practical certainty the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Not entirely departed, apparently, is the ghost of the Literary Digest Poll, which four years ago predicted a Landon victory by 370 electoral college votes.

HUGE WADDY, Franklin Park Zoo's eighty-year-old elephant, is dead, allegedly from the infirmities of old age.

In death, the famous pachyderm, purchased twenty-six years ago with pennies contributed by Boston school children, seems to be as popular a subject for discussion as she was in life.

Some folks contend that Waddy was really not old and maintain that she might have lived to be two hundred, had she escaped her captors in youth and known the freedom of the jungle.

Others are of the opinion that the life span of the elephant is approximately that of a human being and that Waddy was certainly not a "spring chicken."

If the disputing parties look to science to settle their argument, they will look in vain. Eminent authorities also entertain widely differing opinions in regard to elephant longevity.

IN THE World War draft of 1917, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll was only one of 337,649 draft dodgers. Many like Bergdoll were caught and punished but about 160,000 escaped completely . . . Private Richard Sternheim, a conscientious objector who refused to kill anybody even when threatened with death for disobedience, turned out to be one of the heroes of the A. E. F. During the engagement around Hill 378, north of Verdun, France, Sternheim volunteered to rescue the wounded. He started by rescuing six wounded soldiers under machine gun fire. He was mentioned for bravery in the dispatches of General Pershing . . Conscientious objectors are far from being a recent development. Marc Antony exempted Jews from military service because they would not bear arms on the Sabbath. Napoleon exempted Mennonites from active military duty . . . In the World War, allotment per day for meals for each soldier in training camps was 39 cents. This time it is 42 cents, which doesn't seem to indicate the cost of food has gone up much since 1918

WESTBROOK PEGLER was considerably shaken at a recent cocktail party when a woman present exclaimed enthusiastically: "Oh, Mr. Pegler, I just adore your gay little gossip column!" . . . Tallulah Bankhead is keen on international affairs and beer. Vera Zorina hates Brussels sprouts, cigars and small rooms. So their press agents say. I wish to ask all clients on reading this to restrain from exclaiming: "Who the so and so cares?" Let us be tolerant. How about a "Be Kind to Press Agents Week"?

SHOULD ASTROLOGY be on the "must" list of what a young woman should know? Astrologers say it should, because a study of the stars will guide a girl in her selection of a husband and tell her how to handle him. I think we should check on the astrologers. Their claims might make it difficult for some deserving young men to win the heart and hand of their choice in women. For example, take what the astrologers say about men born in the period Feb. 21-March 20. These fellows, known as Pisceans, according to the star gazers, are very hard to handle in a matrimonial way. They are sensitive, secretive, idealistic and reserved. They resent being possessed. They have a martyr complex. Will some client having inside information tell me if it is true what the astrologers say about Pisceans?

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -t- MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Wednesday—Yesterday afternoon went quietly on its way. Some of us took a walk and returned to the big house for tea, where we found Johnny and Anna and their little dachshund, "Percy," had arrived from Boston.

I think what I enjoy most about these "historic" occasions is that they bring together what family there is within reach, and we sometimes hear by telephone, at least, the voices of the rest of the family.

Quite a large group came to a picnic supper at the cottage, but by 9 o'clock we were back at the big house. We sat around radios in the different rooms and received news from the news services and from the various people who telephoned to the President.

About midnight a larger crowd than usual came from Hyde Park with a band and torches and wonderful placards. The President went out to greet them. Later he had to go out a second time, because all the cars had not arrived soon enough for everyone to have a glimpse of him the first time.

LATE in the night, John Boettiger called from Seattle, Washington. We talked with him and with Anna, and afterwards with James and Elliott. Anna told me that our eldest grandchildren had been so concerned that they had decided to prepare them in case of defeat, but the children looked so dejected that nobody was happy until they heard that the verdict was victory.

To children, of course, it is just a case of winning a campaign. To the rest of us, I think, it is rather terrifying, for a great confidence shown you by a people of a great nation is something to make men proud and grateful, but at the same time it is a heavy responsibility.

The returns seem to indicate a vote of real confidence, which must mean that the people of the nation approve of the domestic policies as well as the course charted in our foreign relations.

It was a vigorous fight and now that it is over, for the sake of the country as a whole, let us hope that those who have had to accept a verdict with which they did not agree, will help in every way to carry out the will of the people, having faith in the great common sense of the electorate.

All of us, whatever our political party, love the United States and know that we must work together in the difficult years before us. In our hearts there must be gratitude that we live in a country where the will of the people can be expressed and where no one is afraid to vote and speak according to his beliefs.

SARA ROOSEVELT, daughter of Jimmy and Betsy Roosevelt, attends a fashionable school where almost all her classmates had been wearing Willkie buttons. As a result, during recesses and after school, Sara engaged in political debates there . . . Tuesday, when the Willkie groups became vociferous, the youngster finally told them: "Oh, I don't care what you do, anyhow" . . . "And why not?" a rival challenged . . . "Because," explained young Sara Roosevelt, "you're all eight years old and you can't vote."

MOSS HART hailed a cab from in front of his house on E 57th Street and engaged the driver in conversation. The hackie told the playwright: "I just saw you come out of Mr. Hart's home. He must be a nice fellow, and he certainly knows how to wear clothes" . . . Hart identified himself, but the hackie still was doubtful. "You don't look like a playwright," he told Moss. "That other feller—the one we see go in and out all the time—he looks just like the way we pictured Moss Hart to be. All of us who hack around there are sure he must be Mr. Hart" . . . "Well, what does he look like, this other fellow?" asked Moss . . . The hackie described Charles—the Hart butler.

BILLY ROSE and Ann Corio have ended their publicity stunt feud, in which the producer and the strip teaser stated their respective cases in a publication. That publication omitted the endings of both their articles . . . Rose, after declaring that there was too much sex in burlesque theaters, concluded with: "You never see burlesque theaters picketed, because so many of the patrons can't read" . . . The strip teaser finished her article with: "If sex in show business isn't here to stay, we'll both lose our jobs and find new ones quickly—because I'll then write my autobiography and Rose will again become a stenographer and can work for me."

CLIFFORD ODETS saw "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet." Then he wrote a fan letter to Albert Basserman, the famed German actor who portrayed his first American role in that picture. Basserman acknowledged by sending Odets the usual thank you note sent to a fan . . . Odets went to Hollywood recently and decided that he'd like to meet Basserman. He wrote to the actor, stating that he'd like to see him and talk about his reactions to the new America. Basserman replied, telling Odets when to come . . . The pleased playwright sent flowers to the actor's house, but then was unable to keep the appointment. He asked for another appointment which was granted. Again Odets sent flowers; again he was unable to appear . . . "These young Americans," Albert Basserman shrugged. "I cannot understand them. Notes, flowers, but no dates kept. They are crazy."

ROBERT E. SHERWOOD supplied some of the material used by President Roosevelt in his campaign speeches. In one of those speeches the President had to discard some Lincoln quotations which were to be included in his address. Sherwood's friends asked him if he was disappointed at this elimination of the Lincoln quotations . . . "Oh, no, I'm not disappointed," the playwright told them. "That was Sandberg's Lincoln—not mine."

ALONG COMES TRUTH in the form of real life to confirm Preston Sturges' imagination in "The Great McGinty" . . . Take away the corruption from the plot of Sturgis' entertaining fillum, and we have, in the case of Thomas J. Buckley, an "unknown man" elected to a major office.

"INSIDE STORIES" of the fantastic success-story of the new state auditor-elect are being told around the town . . . It really happened that a newspaperman picked his name literally out of a hat—the city directory . . . Mr. Buckley proved a personable gent, with a ready smile and a hunk of modesty.

A BOARD OF STRATEGY gathered around his seemingly hopeless candidacy . . . The most ambitious request for campaign funds was a plea to a prominent Democrat to subscribe $1000 to the campaign . . . As a token of good will, the prominent Democrat chipped in $200 . . . In the Buckley "brain-trust," the most tireless worker was Edward J. "Knocko" McCormack, the Congressman's brother.

BUT THE NEWSPAPERMAN who selected Mr Buckley to carry the Democratic banner, was in the picture to the end . . . So was the gentleman known as "Captain Doyle," whose campaign speeches were prize bits of hatchet-work in the mayoralty campaign won by Mayor Tobin . . . Jim "The Round Man" McEnaney, the sympathetic (to hopeless causes) and able reporter of this staff, was the unanimous choice of the Buckley mentors to accompany the candidate on a brief vacation.

THE WHOLE "INSIDE STORY" should be forthcoming from that competent source . . . And speaking of Preston Sturges, in six months with a free rein in Hollywood, Preston has nearly stolen "boy wonder" honors from Garson Kanin.

MR. STURGIS "ARRIVED" on Broadway in 1930 by writing a clever farce called "Strictly Dishonorable," a story about a young Southern girl in New York . . . For nine years he worked valiantly as a writer in the Hollywood salt mines . . . And for nine years he pleaded for a chance to direct as well as write his own picture.

HE WAS SO PERSISTENT that a harassed producer finally gave him permission to assemble a small-budget picture with the unattractive title (they thought) of "The Great McGinty" . . . It was a thorough success . . . Preston wrote, directed and cast the picture . . . He chose the scenery and costume designers, and, in effect, was the whole show . . . (It "made" Brian Donlevy.)

THE HOLLYWOOD SAYING that "a man is as good as his last picture" was borne out when "The Great McGinty" made money, thus becoming a "good picture" . . . And Mr. Sturges was allowed to proceed with another individual effort . . . "Christmas in July" is the new one, and it makes Ellen Drew a sure-shot as a future star, and clinches Preston's reputation . . . From now on, he'll have his own unit—a la Frank Capra and John Ford.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Billy Payne, whose name has not figured in publicity releases of Eddie Mack's impending testimonial dinner at the Copley Plaza—Saturday—suggests that he be announced as "The Old Sarge's Sleeper" . . . Meantime, the Mack show is taking shape as a humdinger . . . Socarras, the Cuban orchestra leader with the only "hot" flute in the business, will lead his sizzling unit through a half hour's program . . . (The Cuban maestro opens tomorrow night at the Beachcomber) . . . Nye Mayhew's orchestra, also from the Beachcomber, will be on hand to fill in for Henry Kalis' band. Romo Vincent received a warm greeting at the Mayfair premiere, and the Vincent comedy repertory, particularly his new routine impersonating "An Unmounted Lone Ranger," had his opening night audience howling.

MUSIC HALL FILM CHAPLIN'S NEXT

By Loudla O. Parsons

Charlie Chaplin

PHILADELPHIA, Nov 7—In every town we've played "The Great Dictator" is breaking records and every fan I've talked to has asked me "What will Charlie's next be?" Up until a few hours ago I couldn't truthfully answer that question. Charlie is the most secretive star-producer in the world and hates to have his plans leak out. So don't say I told you but Chaplin's next feature-length film will be a musical of the London dance halls—the variety houses where Charlie himself first started up the ladder of fame. The time will be the gay '90s and it will be in Technicolor. Once again Charlie will return to his little clown character without any message other than music and comedy and entertainment. There's no title as yet but there never is on a Chaplin film, since he works on ideas first and names his pictures at the last minute. So far everything is in the embryo stage but I have an idea the framework of the picture will be biographical with many true incidents from Charlie's own youth.

ROBERT TAYLOR and Hedy Lamarr didn't set the world on fire when they played together in "The Lady of the Tropics." But M-G-M is going to remedy that. The lightning that failed to ignite their first effort will get a chance to strike in "Episode in Lisbon," now scheduled for Hedy and Bob right after the first of the year. The story is sort of a "Grand Hotel" of the famous Clipper flights between Lisbon and New York. Since the war the little Portugal port has become a melting pot for Continentals, and tickets on the Clipper are at a premium. Bob will play an adventurous young American with a ticket—and Hedy will be the charmer trying to get it away from him. Both Hedy and Bob have plenty of good luck in other pictures since their first teaming—so they should go to town as a duet in this Edgar Selwyn production.

NORMAN TAUROG, who has had more luck directing youngsters than almost any other director, has an original he would like to make at M-G-M titled "There They Grow." It's about all the movie juveniles like Mickey Rooney, Jackie Cooper, Jane Withers, Shirley Temple and others who are "Golden Children" until they start to grow up and lose their contracts. Norman thinks it is a wow of an idea for a musical starring Shirley Temple, Mickey Rooney and Jackie Cooper with as many of the other kids whose careers have been threatened with growing pains, as he can get. In the story the kids all fool their producers by getting together and making a swell picture proving there's no awkward age—and isn't that exactly what our Hollywood hopefuls have done?

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND PHILADELPHIA: Rita Lowe filed suit for divorce against Eddie in Los Angeles yesterday, ending the fond hopes of their friends that they might get together; Kay Francis sails for Honolulu Friday on that long-planned vacation; Philadelphia was like New Year's Eve election night and the din of horns and shrieks of the sirens lasted until dawn. Mike Frankovich announced the results from the stage. Thousands sang and danced in the streets. Had five shows and all of us were pretty tired.

Love and Marriage

She's a Courageous Mother

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband broke every law and commandment and wound up in jail. I had a high school education and one year in business college. Yet I did not feel myself too good to do scrubbing and rough cleaning to keep a roof over the children's heads.

I adore the children—a beautiful boy of 8, a little girl of 6. They are so mature, realize their responsibility and help to make each other happy.

While I was out working one day a very wealthy woman, childless, noticed my children and how well they played together. Now if this woman was the usual, rich, stupid reactionary, I should have thrown her out when she offered to adopt my children. But she's a very good sort, has done much for underprivileged people and is a force for good in her community.

I shall put aside my own feelings and dwell only on the advantages to my children if I give them up. I'm a chairwoman and I can never do much for their welfare beyond loving them. This woman can give them an education, culture, a background. Is my heartbreak worth while? The break must be complete. She does not want me to see them again, if she takes them for her very own.

A MOTHER.

The temperate tone of your letter convinces me you have given this decision your best thought. It is not necessary to tell me of your heartbreak—I realize it.

This lady can give the children all those things which will insure their welfare. Presumably she is capable of loving them, too, as she noticed their endearing qualities. I think, however, that she might be willing to stretch a point and agree to let you see them from time to time.

Here's Basic A La King

By MARTHA LEE

Most everyone has at some time or other eaten chicken a la King. Because it is such a delicious dish, one might logically assume that it was named for some royal head of Europe.

It may be interesting to learn that chicken a la King is truly an American dish. It was created soon after the turn of this century by George Greenwald, then head chef of the once famous Brighton Beach Hotel, just outside of New York City. In casting about for a concoction to tempt the palates of the proprietor, E. Clarke King II, and his wife, the chef developed a new sort of chicken dish.

Since the creation of the original recipe a la Kings have undergone many changes, depending upon the leftovers and seasonings the homemaker has on hand. Today a la Kings are often made with foods other than chicken, namely, meat and various types of seafoods.

Here is a modern a la King recipe which, because it has been tested and re-tested by many famous cooks, is one you will want to remember.

BASIC A LA KING RECIPE

2 cups medium white sauce (made from stock if desired)
1 egg yolk
1 or 2 cups canned peas
1 cup cooked and diced meat, poultry or seafood
2 tbsp. butter
¼ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced green pepper and pimiento mixed
½ lb. washed and diced fresh mushrooms, or
1 can mushroom caps
Salt and pepper to taste

Place white sauce in top of double boiler, add slightly beaten egg yolk and blend thoroughly. Add meat, poultry or fish and 1 cup canned peas. While mixture is heating, cook in the butter over a very low heat, add the mushrooms, celery, green pepper and pimiento. When tender, add this to the cream sauce mixture.

One cup of peas is sufficient if added directly to the cream sauce mixture. However, in some instances you may wish to serve the canned peas buttered as a side dish or garnish to the a la king. In this case, one No. 1 can, or two cups of canned peas, will be needed.

Suggested meats and poultry for use in this basic a la King follow. Also a variety of cases in which the a la King may appropriately be served.

Meats—Pork, Veal, Ham (smoked); Sweetbreads.

Poultry—Chicken, Turkey, Chicken Livers.

Seafood—Shrimp, Salmon, Tuna, Crabmeat.

Cases—Tomato Biscuits, Pastry Cases, Popovers, Cream Puff Shells, Bread or Toast Cases, French Toast.

It is quite logical that many homemakers find the addition of canned peas to a la King improves their flavor, because this popular canned vegetable has won a reputation with good cooks everywhere for its ability to go so well with other foods.

Have you ever prepared tomato biscuits? Simply substitute tomato juice for milk in your favorite baking powder biscuit recipe. When topped with chicken a la King and canned peas, you have a dish that will spread unfailing cheer no matter how often you serve it.

TOMATO BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
¼ cup shortening
1 cup tomato juice
½ tsp. salt

Mix and sift dry ingredients; cut in shortening until well mixed and add tomato juice, stirring quickly until a soft but not sticky dough is formed. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet or in muffin pan. Bake in very hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 12 biscuits. Split and serve with your favorite a la King.

TOMATO BAKING POWDER BISCUITS—made with tomato juice instead of milk. Split each biscuit and use for case for chicken a la king and peas.

You Can Be Beautiful

Latest in Nail Lacquer

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE'S NOTHING like an exotic background to put over a new cosmetic idea with us women . . . particularly if the background is authentic enough . . . as it surely is in good perfumes, and as it most surely is in a new nail lacquer that is said to have borrowed an idea from Chinese lacquer, just as bright and glossy today as it was 5000 years ago!

Antique Chinese lacquer is famous because of its almost complete imperviousness to cracking, peeling, chipping and its eternal lustre . . . and they say that this nail lacquer comes as close to these qualities of everlastingness as you'd care to have.

We're as fascinated by the beautiful colors and the names as we are with the brilliant lacquer itself . . . fire cracker red, weeping willow, temple fire . . . celestial pink, dragon's blood . . . and so on and on for 14 stunning shades.

To be thoroughly Oriental about the whole thing, even the containers are designed to look like Chinese vases . . . and a pretty cute idea (just in case that almost impossible thing occurs) is the quick touch-up size included with the large bottle for 75c. In a triangular box you will see the regular size, and beside it a miniature, almost two inches high. This is given with the regular bottle, so you can carry it for an emergency touch-up as easily as you tote a lipstick.

To learn all about this Chinese-inspired nail lacquer, that is said to be almost completely chip, peel or crack-proof, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days, except Saturday, or write, care of Boston American, Boston, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

I'VE HAD a queer jolt lately. It came through that discussion we have been having over secret frats and sororities in public high schools. There are laws against such societies in many of our states—a particularly tough one in California where high school principals are empowered to expel any youngster who joins such clubs.

In San Francisco the registration cards quote the law and add pledges to uphold it which parents and pupils are requested to sign. Yet the frats go merrily on. What about it? We asked. And have been swamped with letters ever since.

They are fine letters, mostly from Most writers commend the article—condemn organizations which discriminate between youngsters in tax-supported schools. Writes one:

"IT'S TERRIBLE the way such clubs affect the poor youngsters. Of course they all want to be bid. If they're not, it just about breaks their hearts. And if they are bid, they get so excited they can't put their minds on their lessons.

"Besides it's so terribly expensive. Think of 14-year-olds paying $15 for initiation dues—$10 each time they have a dance. All those formals for the girls, and the boys—even before they're 15—wanting tuxes. It doesn't seem right. Can't something be done about it?"

IN ONLY THOSE THREE DID THE MOTHERS SEEM TO REALIZE—OR GIVE A DARN—THAT THEY WERE AIDING THEIR CHILDREN TO BE LAWBREAKERS, AND BECOMING LAWBREAKERS THEMSELVES, WHEN THEY ALLOWED THEIR CHILDREN TO JOIN SUCH ORGANIZATIONS AFTER READING THE LAW AND PLEDGING THEMSELVES TO UPHOLD IT.

Queer work at the crossroads, I'll say! I hold no brief for male morality. But men, as a sex, are conventional critters with a natural respect for the legalities. To the average father, the pledge on that registration card would be a binding obligation. And, theoretically, the Little Woman is far more sensitive to ethics than her spouse.

Yet there's some mighty strange evidence. And ever since I collected it, I'm asking a question I can't answer.

ARE WOMEN THE LAWLESS SEX? AND IF SO, WHY SO?

IS THE AVERAGE FEMALE TOO DUMB TO REALIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF LAW AND ORDER . . . OR SO SURE OF HER OWN JUDGMENT SHE CAN'T BE BOTHERED TO FOLLOW THE STATUTES? OR IS SHE JUST A PLAIN MAVERICK BY CHOICE?

Yes, I know all those theories about her being "individualistic." But so was Capone. And no one's sending him violets. Then what? You tell.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WHETHER THE SNOW FLIES or not there's going to be a sled dog derby on the North Shore Sunday afternoon . . . In fact it doesn't matter at all if the Myopia Schooling Field isn't covered with a blanket of snow because the huskies are going to drag miniature automobiles instead of the sleds you see in movies of the Arctic.

Millie Turner, whose novel hobby is raising and training sled dogs for racing, is the guiding spirit of the derby which will raise funds for British War Relief . . . Helping her are Fred Lovejoy, joint master of the Groton Hunt Club, Marie Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vaughan, Dorothy Preston, Charlotte Rantoul and a number of others . . .

It's 10 to 1 that many a North Shore dial will be tuned to WESX this evening for Millie is making her radio debut on a program sponsored in the interests of the derby . . Norman Vaughan, who drove huskies at the South Pole on a recent Byrd expedition, Lawrence Morgan, who drove an ambulance in France last spring, and Lady Mabel Brook, a Londoner who is staying with the Sumner Pingrees for "the duration," will each have a part in the program . . .

The Derby is only one of a gay whirl of social activities on the Shore this coming week-end . . . Before it Millie's grandmother, Mrs. George Lee, is giving a large luncheon for all concerned . . . and afterward most of the young crowd will attend the newlywed Harry Drapers' housewarming cocktail party and shower . . . The housewarming is to celebrate the completion of their new little home in Beverly, and the shower is to help Eavie Lilly solve her housekeeping problems following her marriage to Mrs. Draper's brother, Francis Chalifoux . . .

Saturday's program of social activities is equally as busy . . . At noon Nancy Burrage is being married at a fashionable wedding in Ipswich to William Chace . . . and at 2 o'clock the clear notes of the huntsman's horn will be the starting gun for the annual November steeplechase races at Willowdale, the expansive Bradley Palmer estate in Topsfield . . .

After the races pink coated Myopia huntsmen and women will ride through the woods to Major Francis T. Coloy's for his tea party which has become an annual event following the steeplechase . . .

Ushers Tune Up on Etiquette

THE DO'S AND DONT'S of ushering etiquette were described to some 50 of the season's outstanding debutantes at a tea at the Brookline home of Mrs. Homer Albers yesterday afternoon . . . The girls have been chosen to usher at the Boston Morning Musicales 13th season, which opens next Wednesday with a concert by Charles Kullman . . .

Sally Reed, head usher and her sister deb of last winter, Elizabeth Jenney, her assistant, gave the girls detailed instructions . . . Nancy Vogel, another of last winter's debs who did her bit at the concerts, is studying at the Boston School of Occupational Therapy this year, and described her interesting work at the school which is benefited by proceeds of the concerts . . .

Among the girls at the tea were Betty Breed in a modish black dress with a Bo Peep bodice laced with crimson and an inset of crimson pleats in the skirt . . . Polly Faulkner, a blonde, with pink and white complexion, wore a gray tweed suit with a pink sweater . . . Alice Hurd, a tiny brunette, and Cynthia Reece, a vivacious and popular deb, were also present together with Mary O'Day, Lee Cullen, Julie Falvey, Dagmar Pierce, Nancy Scott, Susan Strong, Christina Baker, Mary Helen Brown, Frances Byers, Caroline Dabney, Deborah Law, Sally Lawrence and others . . .

While on the job the girls are asked to refrain from wearing charm bracelets which would tinkle and disturb other concert goers; no smoking except in the ladies' parlor; no whispering, and, above all, no chewing gum!

FORMER BOSTON GIRL REPORTS FROM LONDON

Mrs. Harry Hayward of Beacon st. receives frequent and encouraging messages from her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, who is the wife of H. Bernard de Smyne of London. The couple turned their beautiful London home over to the government to be used as a canteen, and while Bernard serves his country, Mary Elizabeth and her 10-month-old daughter are living in a little flat somewhere on the outskirts of the city

Musicale Committee Honored

Cheerful and enthusiastic in spite of a sleepless and dreary night of listening to reports returns, members of the Morning Musicales committee were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. John W. Myers of Westwood yesterday.

The enthusiasm of this group increases as the years go on and the musicales, an outstanding series of concerts which benefit the Boston School of Occupational Therapy, will begin the 13th season next Wednesday, with a longer waiting list and more eagerness and cooperation on the part of its committee than ever before.

Three new members were welcomed by the large luncheon group yesterday—Mrs. John E. Lawrence, Mrs. Herbert Kelley and Mrs. George Proctor, 3d. Mrs. Lawrence topped her bittersweet wool suit with a sable neckpiece and cocoa brown hat trimmed with a deeper brown ribbon and quill. Mrs. Kelley accented her blonde hair with an attractive blue outfit and Mrs. Proctor wore black with a veiled bonnet and a fitted black coat with a tuxedo front and hood of vivid plaid.

Among the many other guests were Mrs. Harry Hayward in two tone blue, Mrs. Robert Terry, Mrs. Harold McNeil, Mrs. Philip Loring Reed, Mrs. Paul R. Reed in a becoming French blue velveteen dress and turban, and Mrs. Charles F. Sprague.

What Has Happened:

SIR JOHN SANDERSON, British Intelligence chief, has learned that MARA, his ace woman agent, has betrayed important secrets to the elusive AJAX, head of the Nazi spies in England. His aide, CAPT. HUGH KENLEY, also reported that a parachutist landed near London and vanished in an unknown girl's car. Sir John realized that Mara's treason makes his office position desperate. He must resign or . . .

As he gripped his pistol, a familiar voice outside his residential office interrupted. He slipped the weapon back into a drawer when greeting his ward, beautiful BRINDA DUNCAN, who pleads with him for war service as a spy. He is strongly opposed to this, but evades the issue.

Suddenly two shots were heard from the street, and ORDERLY HUNT announced that Captain Kenley had been murdered. AGENT DONOVAN, on guard duty, describes the fugitive killer as "a big fellow with a limp" who "got out of Miss Brinda's car."

Sir John tried to question Kenley, who managed to whisper a few words . . . Brinda told Sir John how she had given a lift to "a poor fellow with a sprained ankle . . . He looked and talked like an Englishman." She is directed to try and "pick him out" in the official "spy gallery" later. Brinda then receives a mysterious 'phone warning: "What happened to Mara?" . . . Silence, or—death."

Later, Brinda was going through Intelligence photos when Sir John introduced her to LIEUT. RICHARD MALDEN, who just previously had told "Sandy" of a bombing attempt, that morning, on the former's laboratory in which Dick was making some vital war experiments. Brinda and Dick recognize each other as former schoolday sweethearts

Now Continue:

THE LIEUTENANT eyed Brinda with amazed respect. "You've certainly come on!"

She returned his look with interest.

"So have you — Lieutenant Malden."

"But you're really a knockout, Brinda . . . My word, how long ago was it?"

"It was six years," said Brinda, her eyes dancing. "To be exact, six years lacking three months. I was 16 and you were—"

"Nineteen, I guess," supplied Malden.

"You were very bright, I seem to recall, and not bad looking either. All we girls at Miss Cartwright's were gone on you."

Malden's face turned slightly red. "Don't rag a fellow. You know they weren't . . . I mean nobody was."

"I was," said Brinda, looking him full in the eyes.

"Eh! What do you mean?"

"You know very well I was crazy about you, Dick Malden," responded Brinda. "But you were simply impossible. Such a wretched boy! Always making dates and breaking them, then coming around with some story about being busy in the physics laboratory."

Malden frowned. "Well, that was true. I was trying for the Culver scholarship. Maybe I was a little absent-minded."

NOT IN LOVE

"It wasn't' that," and there was a quiver of remembered hurt in Brinda's voice as she went on, "I didn't mind your being absent-minded—when it was your studies, Dick. But the last time, the time you broke your last date with me, it wasn't your studies. Do you remember, Dick—it was a dance at Eton Hall."

"It was?" Malden looked immensely puzzled. "A dance! Now what could have kept me from going to a dance with you?"

"It was another girl, if I must tell you."

"No!"

"Yes, another girl. You see, I have a better memory than you, Dick. I could even tell you her name But don't look so distressed. All that is ages ago and I'm really not in love with you now You went to America, didn't you?"

"Yes, yes. Quite." Malden was obviously relieved at the new trend in the conversation. "They've jolly good technical schools there . . . and then the later made me come back and go in the Navy. Said there was a war coming—and the old fellow was right, by Jove! But what have you been doing besides getting to be a raving beauty? I mean, what are you doing here? You're not in Intelligence by any chance?"

"Don't you remember?"

"Of course. You're Sir John's niece, or something of that sort. I'd almost forgotten."

"That's characteristic," said Brinda. Uneasy under the steady stare of his intent gray-green eyes, she moved a step away. Her arm brushed a file of the indexed photos and it fell to the floor.

"Oh!"

Together she and Malden knelt to pick up the scattered cards. As they rose, Brinda found her face close to the tanned countenance of the naval officer. Suddenly a flush strong hand closed on her arm.

"Brinda, I didn't forget! It was something else. I was a fool."

For a moment, Brinda swayed toward him. Then she pulled her arm away.

"Nonsense, Dick," she said briskly. "It's all too long ago to make any difference. We were only school children anyway . . . Here, help me straighten these cards."

"Oh, very well," with a disgruntled air, he complied.

Watching him from the corner of her eyes, Brinda realized that the years had made him even more attractive than the Dick Malden of her school days. He still had a slightly professional look, due to an austere profile, a high forehead and a granite chin. But the mouth was sensitive and the chin was relieved by something very like a boyish dimple. She remembered how that blend of adult competence in juvenile naivete had appealed to her in the days when she was attending the fashionable Cartwright Academy and Dick was an undergraduate at one of England's famous public schools in the next town.

She winced recalling it—winced, too, at the remembrance of that night of disillusionment when she had discovered the real reason for Dick's failing to keep that engagement, which in those days had seemed so overwhelmingly important.

She had pictured him that summer night as bending over charts and blueprints in a physics laboratory. Instead, he was at the opera with her schoolmate, the beautiful Lady Gladys Mountwyn, heiress to the Mountwyn steel millions The daughter of the same Lord Mountwyn who had figured in the recent scene attending Kenley's murder.

Apparently Malden had been doing some speculating too for he suddenly asked her: "Are you working with Sir John's Intelligence, Brinda? Or if not, just what are you doing here?"

Some instinct cautioned Brinda to guard her words. "Nothing to you mostly, it seems," she snubbed. "And you?"

"I?" His face was as disarmingly ingenuous as the face of the 19-year-old Dick Malden of bygone days. "I'm looking for a chap who tried to blow me up."

"Blow you up? How unkind!"

"Rather. And he chose precious near doing it too." There was a note of grieved anger in Malden's voice. "I caught a glimpse of the duffer and I'm trusting I'll find his picture in here."

"But why would anyone want to blow you up?"

"Well, strictly speaking, the chap wasn't after me, but my laboratory. My invention, you know. No doubt Sir John has told you all about it."

"THE Z-RAY!"

Brinda smiled enigmatically. Until the last 24 hours, she could not recall Sir John as having told her anything about the inner workings of the British Intelligence Office

"I don't even know whom Gladys is going to marry" . . . "Allow me to present him . . . Lieut. Malden, at your service."

You mean—?"

He was wholly unsuspicious. "The Z-Ray," he said. "It's an amazing affair, if we can only handle it. So naturally it wouldn't do to have the place dynamited . . . just now."

A voice interrupted from the doorway—one of Sir John's secretaries. "Lieut. Malden! Lord Mountwyn just called. He asks you to remember you have a rather important engagement at his home tonight."

Abruptly Brinda turned.

"Dick, it doesn't happen to be Lord Mountwyn's [illegible] tonight?"

Why yes.

"Then I'll see you again later."

"You'll be there? [illegible] Yes, I seriously [illegible] any more [illegible] wants me to go. He and Lord Mountwyn have some business I think

"Rupert," [illegible] to welcome you." But the face was not as hearty as the words.

Brinda looked [illegible] an uneasy premonition forming in her mind . . . But that would be impossible . . . The tall [illegible] Lady Gladys . . . Dick, the young scion of the ancient but [illegible] by impecunious Malden family. . . . She made the [illegible]

"Isn't it [illegible] engagement party and I don't even know whom Gladys is going to marry. You are [illegible]

Malden bowed.

"Allow me to [illegible] Lieut. Malden. At your service."

Brinda [illegible] a faint smile But there was [illegible] heart—with [illegible] slow creeping [illegible]

Is Brinda jealous? Will she attend the party? Don't miss tomorrow's gripping chapter.

AUSTEN LAKE

Ave Atque Vale to Boston's Top Kick

SATURDAY NIGHT IN THE GAWD and gilt of the Copley Plaza's ballroom 1200 folk of various stations of life—doctors and horse-touts, clergymen and bookmakers, statesmen and slick-silks—a conglomeration of high-and-low with a middle mixture, will push back their coffee cups and sit silent. A gnome-like little man with a ruddy-face and a nervous manner of hitching his chin will rise and make his valedictory.

AUSTEN LAKE

The little man is Eddie Mack, entrepreneur of the fist-fight, dilettante of the horse tracks, raconteur of sport legend, World War top-kicker and in the plain, homespun argot of the streets a "swell guy."

In his hey-day when fighters like Honey Mellody, Abe Friedman, Johnny Clinton, Joe Chick and Joe Egan were busting chins for a percentage of the house, Eddie was known to sidewalk charity as the town's "softest touch." He made it, spent it and gave it away. His acrid philosophies, his homely bon mots, his pungent lingo were feateures of Newspaper Row and the little cave of the winds office which he called the "goat's nest." Eddie talked large and did big.

He's ill now. A touch of phosgene gas, inhaled in the Argonne Woods 22 years ago, has softened his lung tissue. The medicos say he must go South and West to a drier, warmer climate. But Eddie in his own language hasn't "the wallpaper," i. e. the wherewithal to transport himself, wife and daughter to that healthier clime. So friends are promoting a deluxe soup-slup and biscuit toss. The man who cast his bread copiously upon the waters is getting a little of his loaf back. Boston bids hail and a hopeful au revoir to a piquant personality—the one and only Top Sergeant.

The Why of "Prairie Debs"

DOWN NORTH STATION WAY slim-shanked men in scroll leather boots, high heels and awning hats lurk in the hallways. Watch-charm ladies in tight fitting show-clothes, with thin lips and shrewd eyes swap banter with a confidence born of physical competence. They are rawhide folk whose gospel is action—men who speak the lazy lingo of the South and sing mournful songs of simple life in a high pitched lament; hard shell ladies who hug the hurricane deck of a calico bronk and think nothing of busting their bones; strange people from the far ends of our national crazy-quilt.

Some are agony matrons, pretty but severe-featured females who risk their necks on sorrel "jughead" or come "sunfishing" out of the saddling chutes—Tad Lucas, Rose Davis, Mary Parks, Alice Greenough, Mildred Miz Horner who earn hard-won money in a rough house profession that makes a college fullback seem like a parlor smoothie. And there are a quintet of prairie-debs in fancy hair-pants and jockey's satins—cactus kids who play tag with range cows wearing horns like a hat-rack, rodeo daughters who would look good in party frocks, types who might be lisping sweet nothings to raccoon coated escorts at college football games.

Why do the cow-ladies endanger their favorite skeletons with these horse hooligans? Are they a special corduroy breed, feminine, hair-breadth hellions with super frames, insulated nerves and a taste for the sensation of train-wreck?

The cow ladies don't like the insinuation. They say they are products of a homespun society of plain speaking people. Fun on the range is limited. Days pass shagging the dogies, dipping tick infested cattle, hunting strays, munching chuck-wagon grub. The tea-cozy, drawing room, or office desk virtues of city life hold no charms for the prairie-debs. They say they have no envy for Eastern party girls with their organdies, lip-stick and fluff. They are cow-fems by reason of being born in the rugged atmosphere of a daddy-owned ranch, cradled on

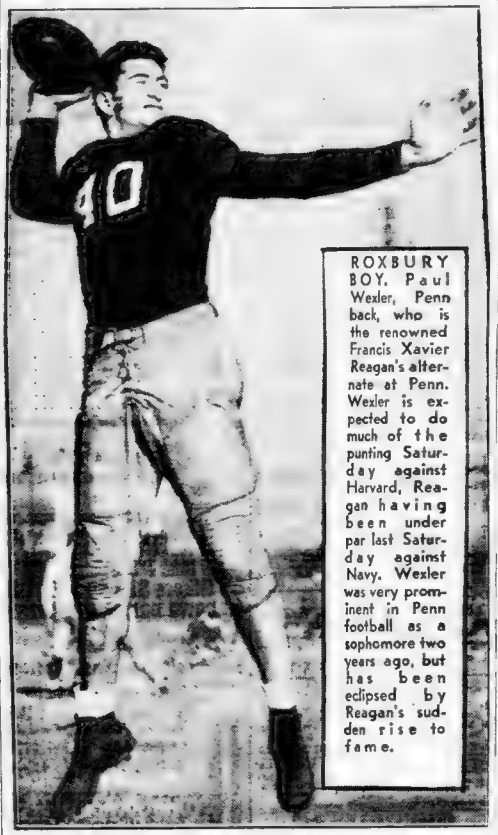
GRID DEATHS ON DECLINE FOR FOURTH YEAR IN ROW

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)—A gridiron vital statistics expert reported today that deaths from football were on the decline for the fourth year in a row.



ROXBURY BOY. Paul Wexler, Penn back, who is the renowned Francis Xavier Reagan's alternate at Penn. Wexler is expected to do much of the punting Saturday against Harvard, Reagan having been under par last Saturday against Navy. Wexler was very prominent in Penn football as a sophomore two years ago, but has been eclipsed by Reagan's sudden rise to fame.

Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, record keeper for the American Football Coaches' and National Collegiate Athletic Associations, said that only eight deaths could be blamed on the game for the first half of this season.

The figure has shown a downward trend since 1937, said Eastwood, an associate professor of men's physical education at Purdue University.

TOUCH FOOTBALL

Five of the 1940 fatalities were ascribed directly to football and three—two from heart trouble and one from an infection—indirectly.

Directly attributed deaths numbered two less than for the same part of 1939. The decline was in the high school classification, where two deaths occurred against four last year.

Only one fatality blamed directly on football was in college competition—that of Jack Tandy, 21, of San Francisco State College, who died Oct. 27 of cerebral hemorrhage.

Another such death occurred an an athletic club game of touch football—ordinarily regarded as less hazardous than the regulation game.

The victim, John H. Donaldson, 20, of Amherst, Mass., died Oct. 1 of skull fracture suffered in collision with another player.

The fifth fatality of this kind was that of 14-year-old Kenneth Vinton of Seattle, Wash., Sept. 16, from an appendix ruptured by a kick in a sandlot game.

MOSTLY KIDS

Other deaths:

Directly attributed — Edmund Alubowicz, 17, Dickinson City (Pa.) high school, Sept. 28, spinal injury; James Cholas, 18, Grand Junction (Colo.) high school, Sept. 30, cerebral hemorrhage.

Indirectly attributed — Douglas M. Parsons 21, Wheaton (Ill.) College, Sept. 12, heart trouble; Merle Bailey, 14, Mount Ayr (Ia.) high school, Oct. 18, heart trouble; Carl Strong, 15, Winter Park (Fla.) high school, Oct. 12, infection.

Penn Grooms Wexler For Punting Duties

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 6—Coach Harry Munger drove his Penn charges through an intensive drill on Harvard plays today in preparation for Saturday's game here, while Frank Reagan and understudy Paul Wexler were concentrating on their punting.

Munger was quite dissatisfied with the kicking in the Navy victory last week.

During the mid week drill, Reagan and Wexler, a graduate of Roxbury (Mass.) Memorial high school, gave the finest exhibition of punting ever seen on the practice field. Aided by a strong wind, both tailbacks booted more than 100 yards, the carry being 90 yards.

Three strong teams were used in defense against Crimson plays. The coverage of punts took up the greater part of the session, evidently the result of Harvard's Fran Lee's 52-yard runback in the Dartmouth game.

Jack Welsh was at right halfback again in place of the veteran, Johnny Dutcher, and he is expected to start at this post. There is a possibility that Bernie Kuczynski will start at left end. He was filling in in place of sophomore Frank McKernan in this practice drill.

Field will be held.

Harvard's hopes of holding Penn to a low score were heightened with the news that Loren MacKinney will be in the starting lineup at his left end position. Also, there's a slim chance that Capt. Joe Gardella may see action.

SAVED FOR A SPOT

Capt. Joe has been working out this week under the guidance of Trainer Jimmy Cox and may get into the game if by any chance things go the Crimson's way. The loss of the Cantab leader means that Dick Harlow has lost his best defensive back and a fine runner and as yet the coaches are undecided who will fill in at the spinning back position. Soph Mott Waldstein has had the call all week and may win the starting assignment.

Dick Harlow has said that he will take no chances with Gardella, lest he may be laid up for the rest of the season, but if Harvard should ever get within scoring distance, Harlow may insert Gardella.

Harlow has not given up hope that his team may be able to give the Quakers a real tremor.

He has sent his team through hours of aerial drills, in which Charley Spreyer has so greatly improved in his passing that he will be a real threat against Penn.

Harvard Squad of 31 Off Tonight for Penn

A vanguard of 31 Harvard football players leave the South Station at midnight tonight for the Quakers' headquarters and will arrive here early tomorrow morning, when a short workout at Franklin

Phils to Sell Higbee to Pay For Players

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7 (INS)—Walter Kirbe Higbe, young right-handed pitcher who won 14 and lost 19 games for the Phillies last season, will be sold to the Giants, Reds or Dodgers within the next three weeks, Pres. Gerry Nugent, of the Phils, said today.

Higbee's sale at $150,000 is necessary to "pay for the players we bought this year," Nugent explained, adding the club would shoulder attendance losses itself.

Higbe came to the Phils from the Chicago Cubs in 1939, winning 12 games while losing 13 here. After a poor start, he made a sensational finish last summer to bring his wins to 14.

Dick High to Play Against Army Team

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7 (INS)—Dick High, the Brown back who ran 92 yards for a touchdown against Yale last week, was expected today to be ready for action against Army Saturday despite a leg injury suffered at practice yesterday. The Bears were polishing up their pass defense.

Waddy's Body Used In Harvard Research

While the younger Dutch and Hazel gazed in bewildermeat at her empty quarters, the body of Waddy, 80-year-old elephant of Franklin Park Zoo, was being prepared at Harvard for research work today.

The ponderous Waddy, bought 26 years ago by children's pennies, in ill health for months, died Tuesday.

Why Rap B. C. Victory At Tulane?

By FRANK FENWAY

A bleating Bayouite won himself considerable space in the damyankee journals earlier in the week with the nauseous declaration that the Tulane team which belted Clemson in New Orleans last Saturday would have tipped over Boston College as easily.

Son, hand your pappy his shooting iron, those rebels are a kickin' up again.

At the time of the Boston College triumph, Frank Thomas, coach of Alabama, came up with pompous announcement to the effect that the Green Wave outfit walloped by the Eagles that day would be capable of defeating them six weeks hence.

DIDN'T SEE GAME

And it was around this quotation that the New Orleans writer built his cock-eyed declaration.

Frank Thomas did not see the Boston College-Tulane game and was not qualified to judge the comparative abilities of the two teams.

When he made that statement Mr. Thomas may have just possibly had it in the back of his mind that his ball team was going to be playing Tulane in six weeks.

Mr. Thomas couldn't, by any chance, have been giving himself an out in case the Green Wave knocked off his boys, could he? You don't just suppose that Thomas feared being beaten by a team that lost its opening game.

Oddly enough, six weeks after Thomas made his little speech his own team is stacking up against Tulane. It sort of looks like Mr. Thomas was putting in one lick for Tulane and two for himself.

B. C. WON WITH EASE

Inexperience was credited by Thomas and the current New Orleans blatherer for the defeat of the Tulane team in their opener. It appears, according to the account, that the guards were being pulled out of position and that was the secret of the Boston College win.

Nuts, double nuts and nertz.

Boston College won that game because it was so confounded superior it was laughable. And when I say laughable I mean exactly that.

Throughout the second half the crowd was actually in an uproar over the ease with which Boston College was handling this supposedly greatest of all southern teams.

And when Tulane started to march late in the fourth period the unanimous comment among the spectators was, "Aw the Boston College coach is letting them score. Look, he's putting in his fourth stringers."

Everybody in the Sugar Bowl, with the seeming exception of the gent who manufactured the current article, was convinced that the Eagles were so far superior to Tulane that they should never even have been matched.

TULANE ADMITTED DEFEAT

The New Orleans scribe, in support of his thesis, said that it took the Green Wave three weeks to get organized and that was why it dropped its next two contests Fordham and Auburn, before shattering the victory column.

Mister, up here in the North we have another reason for those three straight losses by Tulane, and this is it. The Green Wave took such a thorough shellacking from the Eagles of Boston College that it took them three weeks to recover.

The Tulane team was composed of a nice bunch of boys and they have a fine coach. But in that game with Boston College they were completely outclassed and were the first to admit it.

And now, a parting word, if you have any more stories like that in your hip pocket, date-line them from Cleveland. They don't look right coming out of New Orleans.

1940 DATE _____

An entry which offers a direct challenge to the pride of every boy rifle shooter in New England came in today from Beverly.

David C. McNeill, instructor of Beverly Girls Rifle Club, tells the entire story of this outstanding feminine team in a letter accompanying the entry.

Mr. McNeill writes:

"Please enter The Beverly Girls Rifle Club team in the William Randolph Hearst Junior Rifle Trophy Competition.

"This girls' club is affiliated with the National Rifle Association and enters one or more teams in every series of junior matches sponsored by that organization, where we compete on even terms with the boys' teams.

"Last season we won first place in Class "C" in the first series of matches and finished second in the second series in Class "A," which is open only to teams scoring 490 or more from a possible 500.

"Each season the girls fire shoulder-to-shoulder matches with a number of boys' teams, including Gloucester High R. O. T. C., Quincy Boy Scout Rifle team and Norwood High School Rifle

"We have completed one match in the current series of N. R. A. junior competitions, with a team score of 483, and while all the girls have not yet fired their targets for the second match we already have a team total of 496 from a possible of 500.

"Margaret Killcoyne, president of the club, and Marjorie MacNeill, secretary, both fired perfect scores of 100, while the treasurer, Eleanor Caverly and the executive officer, Frances Brooks, dropped only one point each for scores of 99, and Barbara Lee scored 98.

"Ten girls fire on the team and the five high scores are counted for record, only six girls have fired in this match, the remaining four will fire this week.

"We sincerely hope the girls are permitted to fire in the Hearst Junior matches as we think it is the greatest competition in New England rifle history."

B. U. Starts 5 Seniors Against B. C.

There will be five seniors in the Boston University starting lineup Saturday facing Boston College for the last time.

Captain Jim McDonald and Bill Barry at the ends and both guards, Charlie Cremens and Bob Brown take their last shot at the Leahymen. The one starting senior in the backfield will be Bobo Connearney, the Terriers' veteran blocking quarterback.

FACE B. C. FOR THIRD TIME

This will be the third time that McDonald and Cremens have started against the Eagles and the chances are that Cremens will be in there from start to finish but McDonald's stay may be short.

That jinx which seems to affect captains certainly caught up with the Terrier leader this fall. Jim started the season with a bad knee and added a wrenched shoulder and an elbow bursitis along the route.

His presence means much to the Hanleymen and as long as he can go, he will help the team immeasurably. Last Saturday after Western Reserve exploded two touchdowns the first two times they took the ball, it looked as though a rout was in the offing but Coach Pat Hanley rushed Jim into the game and he quickly settled the club down and the team turned in 57 minutes of most acceptable football.

CREMENS REAL IRONMAN

McDonald calls the defensive signals and plays his end position as he sees fit—crashing, waiting or even fading. Jim is the only Terrier wing that has ever been given this latitude at Pat Hanley's seven years at Boston University.

When Jim retires the captaincy will be taken over by Charlie Cremens who is first lieutenant. Cremens is one of those physical football freaks who has played more actual time than probably anybody on either the Terrier or the Eagle squad.

In 16 games over a three-year period, Cremens who weighs 159 pounds has played 60 minutes in ten of these games and gone over 50 minutes in the other six.

CONNEARNEY'S TURN

Brown and Barry are certain to turn in good performances while Connearney is a steady day in and day out blocker who always does his job.

Another senior that should be mentioned with the regulars although he isn't starting is George Pantano who has split the quarterback job with Connearney for two weeks and won't start only because it's "Bo's" turn. Pantano will be the regular next week.

Ralph Salvati and Aiden Burnell who have also won regular rating in several games will see plenty of action.

Malden Catholic Heading for Sixth Title

By SAM BROGNA

Brockton's dominance among the schoolboys throughout the State is on the downward trend this fall, but in case of Malden Catholic, perennial champions of the Catholic League, it's just like Ole Man River, it keeps on rollin' along.

For practically every year during the past decade, the Shoe City representatives were either champions or close to it and, during the past three seasons, have been defending the schoolboys' most coveted award—the state crown. However, it appears as though they have finally taken a back seat at least for this season, since Coach Charlie Holden's champs dropped three verdicts thus far and are out of any further running.

In the Catholic Loop, since no worthy opponent has been able to dethrone it, Malden Catholic continues to ride on top. For the past five years, M. C. has won its league championship, last fall enjoying its most successful campaign. That of going through the entire 10-game schedule without being tied or even scored on.

HIT BY GRADUATION

This team was rated not only the best in their class but also could have taken the measure of any eleven in Greater Boston or outside the limits. It was that good.

Of that standout 1939 outfit, nine regulars were graduated, leaving its new coach, Brother Wilfred who succeeded Brother Vincent, a large hole to fill.

After a rocky start, in which the plucky band dropped a 0 to 13 decision to Dedham, which is one of the few remaining undefeated and untied elevens in the state, they started to click.

In Catholic League competition this year Brother Wilfred's boys hung up three straight wins without being scored on, but last week finished on the short end of a 0 to 3 count against Keith Academy. This was their first league loss since 1938. Also the three points were the first chalked against them since the fall of '38.

St. Clement's (25-0), Cathedral (26-0) were the first two to fall under an avalanche of touchdowns. St. Mary's of Brookline, which hadn't dropped a single contest in five played, followed next, on an 0 to 9 score.

With three contests remaining, St. Mary's of Waltham, St. Charles also of Waltham and Mission, all of which are to be played at home, Malden should easily add its sixth straight Catholic League title.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR SULLY

Players who are responsible for the greater part of this year's success are co-captains Bud Barry, quarterback, Tony Mareno, left tackle and Johnny Sullivan, elongated right end.

Barry has been doing an excellent job in calling plays, as well as heaving most of the passes and doing a large share of ball toting.

Sullivan, a 16-year-old youth, has been shining both defensively and offensively.

Standing four inches over the six foot mark and tipping the scales at 190 pounds, Sullivan is expected to go places after graduation.

The rest of the backfield has Leo Martell at fullback, "Punchy" Mallon and Buck Donahue at the halfback berths. Joe Cassidy balances off Sully on the end flank spot; Bob McNamara, 210-pounder, at right tackle; Billy Sullivan (no relation to Jim) and Jim McNaught hold down the guard posts, and Joe Harris takes care of the center of the line.

BIDDING FOR "ALL" BERTH—John Sullivan, 6-4, 190-odd pounds, looks a bit on the grim side as he contemplates the remainder of the Catholic High School League schedule. Sullivan has been a standout for Malden Catholic, defending league champion, and he will be a prominent contender for league honors

BRUINS POSTPONE FIRST ARENA DRILL

By BILL GRIMES

Boston Bruins did not hold their scheduled practice at the Arena this afternoon because two of the squad were on the injured list and six others are still in Canada.

The first Boston practice of the season, consequently, will be held tomorrow at the Arena where on Sunday the Bs meet the Olympics in an extra-curricular clash.

Capt Dit Clapper, Art Jackson, Roy Conacher, Bobby Bauer, Bill Cowley and Dez Smith were given permission to visit their families after the Bruins tied the Ottawa Senators in Ottawa there Tuesday night.

Conacher, Smith, Bauer in Ottawa with Jackson, and Connacher in Toronto, Bobby Bauer in Weston and Clapper in Hawthorne, suburbs of Toronto. All will be present for tomorrow's practice here.

On the injured list are Eddie Wiseman and Porky Dumart. Wiseman contracted a charley horse in the last exhibition game at Hershey and Dumart pulled a tendon in the game with Canadiens.

They came right down from Montreal where the Bruins tied Carbonneau's 11 in the league opener Sunday night.

Bs who are in Boston today are Frankie Brimsek, Jack Crawford, Jack Shewchuk, Milt Schmidt, Herb Cain, Mel Hill, Manager Art Ross, Coach Cooney Weiland, Trainer Win Green and Assistant Trainer Hammy Moore.

Army Grid Leader Warns Opponents

By PAT ROBINSON

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS)—A fortnight ago Capt. Bill Wood, the Army football coach, cautioned everybody not to sell the Army short.

At that time the injury-tidd'ed and inept Army players looked as if they belonged in the Vassar daisy chain rather than on a football field.

Capt. Bill's statement drew a round of raucous guffaws, especially in Navy circles, where some of the old salts wondered if Army would show up for the Navy game this year and assured everybody that if the Kaydets did show up they would be gleefully slaughtered by the best team Navy has had in years.

But that was before the Army ran Notre Dame ragged. After that amazing, if losing, performance Army football stock soared like a kite in a gale.

NAVY AT ATTENTION

Today, the Navy probably will pay more attention when Capt. Wood and the whole Cadet Corps say: "Sailor, beware!" That warning goes, too, for Brown, next Saturday and Penn and Princeton.

"The chumps of October," said Capt. Wood today, "are often the champs of November. And this Army team is a November team. We have just begun to click. We were pretty good against Notre Dame but we'll be better from now on and by the time we meet Navy, well—good as Navy undoubtedly is, we don't intend to be led meekly to slaughter.

"This Army team never figured to be as bad as it appeared in its early games when we couldn't field more than half our strength. Before the season started we played a regulation game with Columbia and beat them, 35 to 0. Then came a crop of injuries and the team fell apart.

COACH PROUD OF THEM

"Now we are all set to show something. All we need is a little brushing up on our blocking and tackling and we'll be ready to entertain Brown, Penn, Princeton and Navy. Especially Navy.

"I am proud of this Army team. It has just as much spirit and hits just as hard as any of its predecessors and I believe Notre Dame will testify to that."

The 104,000 who will see Army play Navy this year are going to see one of the most bitterly waged games of the long series between them. And, let us repeat: Don't sell Army short.

Dolly's Love Wins In Pimlico Chase

Dolly's Love, Evander B. Schley's six-year-old gelding, hit the victory trail again yesterday at Pimlico in the featured Battleship Steeplechase Handicap.

Winner only once in seven previous starts this year, the veteran took the jumps well over two miles in 3:53 2-5 and repulsed the favored Good Cause (owned by the Rokeby stable) by a length and a half.

The winning was worth $2575 to Schley and $2 to $2 in the mutuels.

Dykes Anxious To Barter

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (INS)—Jimmy Dykes, the popular manager of Chicago's White Sox, was back in town today after a California vacation, talking a great deal about his plans for the team next year, but saying very little.

The 1941 White Sox may be greatly changed from the 1940 edition, according to Dykes, and he is willing to trade off all but four of his players if he can arrange suitable swaps. The four the Sox will not let go were named by Dykes as Pitchers Johnny Rigney and Ted Lyons, Center Fielder Mike Kreevich and First Baseman Joe Kuhel.

Kaplan Can Land Title Bout

On the threshold of the world's welterweight championship, Merry Mike Kaplan of Roxbury needs but a convincing victory over George Martin to step into a bout for the crown against the world's 147-pound title-holder, Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh.

Kaplan collides with Martin at the Boston Garden a week from tonight in the 15-round feature of a Goodwin A. C. show. The N. E. welter crown, which Kaplan took from Frankie Britt, will be at stake in this 15-framer which looms as the most "natural" offered hereabouts in years.

The fight has all the alluring angles which are a promoter's dream. Their neighbors from Roxbury and South End, both shooting to the top and hostiles from amateur days. Martin slumped for a spell but has made an amazing comeback. In his last he punched out a great victory over Pedro Montanez, who needs no introduction.

Kaplan has been fighting continuously in Pittsburgh. He fought Zivic there and had the conqueror of Armstrong on the floor. However, Kaplan lost a decision which was as thin as a razor blade and slightly tainted with a "home-town" touch.

Cornell Head Hits Ohioan for Snavely Attack

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7 (INS—Cornell's director of athletics, James Lynah, responded with a vehement denial today to the charges that Coach Carl Snavely of the Big Red used a wig-wag system from the sidelines to guide his team to victory over Ohio State.

Lynah made the denials in letters to Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association, and to L. W. St. John, the Ohio State athletic director.

Lynah chided St. John for making the charges public in the press before putting them officially on record or communicating with Cornell officials.

To Bushnell, Lynah wrote that he makes it a habit to keep his glasses focused on Snavely from his seat in the stands to watch the coach's reaction to critical situations in the game and that never once has he seen him signaling.

Some times, under the stress of excitement, Snavely may go through many gyrations clutching a rolled up program or pieces of paper, but this could not be construed as signaling, Lynah wrote.

In the Ohio State game, Lynah said, he particularly noted Snavely's actions, and not once, he asserted, was he able to detect anything that might be construed as signaling.

Mr. BOSTON

AROUND TOWN with Mr. Boston.

A visit from Al McCoy, who had just received word from Mike Jacobs and Rip Valenti that Joe Louis had signed to meet him in a 15-round battle for the world's championship at the Garden on Dec. 16.

WALTER BROWN

"I recently returned from Maine, where I roughed it in the woods for 10 days," said Al . . . "I have always considered Louis an overrated fighter, and believe I have a chance to beat him . . . I am faster than Joe, also a better boxer . . . I can hit pretty good with my left hook . . . It will be a real fight, and if Louis expects easy sailing he is going to have quite an awakening."

McCoy recently gave Billy Conn his hardest battle . . . If Al does as well against Louis, the latter is in for a busy evening . . . The show wil be offered at a $5.50 top, and it will draw $68,000 in the event of a sellout . . . Louis will receive 40 per cent of the gate, while McCoy will pull down 15 per cent of the receipts.

George Freeman dropping in to state there is a rush of boxers eager to compete in the Hearst All-America tournament, which opens with trial bouts at the Arena on next Monday night . . . There will be contests in the open classes and also for the novices . . . As in former years, there will be four sets of trials, to be followed by the New England finals, Eastern finals and grand national finals . . . There are better amateur boxers for this year's tournament than ever before.

There is certain to be spirited competition in the trials and in the New England finals . . . The New England boxers, who later meet the simon pures from other sections of the country, are certain to give an excellent account of themselves.

Freeman suggests that amateur boxers send their entries to Tom Kanaly at the Arena at once . . . Any boxer not more than 25 years of age may compete.

What with the All-America amateur boxing tournament getting under way, and Louis and McCoy signed to trade wallops at the Garden on Dec. 16, it looks as if the ring game is once more clicking in this city.

Sports Boom Hits the Garden

WALTER BROWN, general manager of the Garden, was in the North Station as I paraded toward the train to Rockingham Park.

"The rodeo has been doing big business in the Gaarden," said George . . . "We played to 23,000 persons last Sunday alone . . . Of this number 6300 were youngsters, and how they could shout and cheer . . . I think Gene Autry has given the rodeo greater appeal than it had last year . . . The show as a whole is also better.

"Next Tuesday night professional hockey returns to the Garden . . . Later there will be ice carnivals . . . Boxing also looks as if it is on the way back . . . The recent Conn-McCoy bout attracted a large crowd, while Louis and McCoy should jam the Garden . . . I think we shall have boom days at the Garden."

Babe Rubenstein telling me about the details of the Eddie Mack testimonial dinner at the Copley-Plaza on Saturday night as he rode to Rockingham . . . Babe says George Holland and George Clarke, under the able supervision of John Noonan, have arranged one of the best floor shows ever offered in this city . . . Babe declares the sale of tickets has passed the 700 mark, but added that choice reservations still may be secured at Room 400, No. 101 Milk st.

Lou Smith standing in front of the Administration Building checking the arrival of horse players . . . Dave Alexander, talented turf writer, receiving congratulations upon his appointment as director of publicity of new race track at Oakland, Cal. . . . Dave says racing will commence on Dec. 28 and that he will remain in the East for another month on a good will tour.

EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON—If It's Green It's the Latest!

HARVARD HARRIERS—Five wearers of the Crimson limber up in preparation for Heptagonal cross-country race next Saturday over the tough Van Cortlandt Park course, New York. Harvard and Cornell tied for top honors last year, but Harvard is anxious to hold the title alone this year, though they are considered of the "dark horse" variety. The runners are, left to right, Bob Burnes, Joe Scott, Joe Sopka, Capt. Lang Burwell and Bob Nichols.

POINT POSSIBILITIES—Kay Rogers, left, and Bob Jay, top flight Harvard harriers, lace on their shoes for a final workout along the Charles river before entraining for the Heptagonal meet in Gotham. Jaakke Mikkola, coach of the Crimson, is expecting much for the pair, for he figures if they can finish near the top the Johnnies should bring the title to the shores of the Charles without any strings tied to it this year.

Harvard 'Dark Horse' Of 'Hep' Harriers

Seven members of the Harvard cross-country squad will journey to New York Saturday in an effort to retain their Heptagonal title which they won last year.

Capt. Lang Burwell is the co-favorite with Bob Bird of Yale to cop the individual title over the five mile Van Courtland Park course at Gotham..

Harvard began the season with poor prospects, but to date has only dropped a decision to Princeton. Last year, Harvard and the Big Red of Cornell tied for the top honors.

Coach Jaakko Mikkola of the Crimson hill and dale troupe hasn't counted his seven-man team out of the running this year.

"Cornell and Princeton are the pre-meet favorites, but I think that Harvard has a fighting chance," the likeable Finn coach stated.

Harvard's harriers would be in a little better position if one of their members hadn't met with a strange accident. Joe MacLaughlin, the second best runner on the Harvard team, ran into a fence yesterday and may be out of the big meet. If Joe is unable to make the trip, senior Bob Nichols will replace him.

Speaking about the Ivy meet, the Harvard coach said:

"I expect that good times will be made in the race. The course in New York is not as difficult as the one here in Cambridge and that will be a big help to our runners."

Pre-meet favorites for the title include Bird, Main and Shapely of Yale; Buel of Dartmouth; John Drebinger of Penn. and Lang Burwell of Harvard.

Coach Mikkola gives special credit to Capt. Burwell for the team's excellent showing this year by saying:

"Burwell, our best runner, has built up the team. We had nothing on paper at the start of the season."

The Harvard squad which will leave the Hub Friday includes Capt. Lang Burwell, Joe MacLaughlin, Kay Rogers, Bob Jay, Joe Scott, Ed Cook, John Sopka and alternates Bob Nichols and Bob Burnes.

Loss of Al Bazis Weakens Fordham

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (INS)—The surprise withdrawal from school of Al Bazis, of Scranton, Pa., second-string end, left the Fordham line considerably weakened today for Saturday's game with Purdue. Bill Kellagher may get the assignment to replace Bazis leaving still another hole for Coach Jimmy Crowley to plug from scanty reserve material.

Injured Huskies Back on Job for St. Anselm Duel

Charlie Abend, veteran guard from Wilkes-Barre, and Eddie Barry, a veteran wingback from Wellesley, have returned to their regular posts at Northeastern and will start against St. Anselm on Saturday at Manchester.

Abend was injured in the Upsala game two weeks ago, and rejoined the squad only last Tuesday. He now appears in excellent physical condition, however, and definitely will be in the starting lineup. Barry was temporarily deposed by sophomore Franny Murray last week, but he has won back his starting honors.

Coach Jimmy Dunn this morning announced the rest of his first lineup. Joe Dias, Ronnie Tubbs and Phil Sheridan will join Barry in the backfield, while the line will have Jim Reilly and Ed Macfarland at ends, Capt. Dean Williams and Art Handler at tackles, Abend and Len Erickson at guards, and Dick Grey at center.

Jim Shea of Brighton, who suffered a severe injury in scrimmage, may not be available against the Hawks. His loss will be important, because he is rated the best forward passer on the squad.

Williams and Erickson collided in practice and suffered minor injuries, but both will be ready on Saturday. Jim Jefferson of Belmont, reserve tackle, probably will not dress, however.

I DON'T EXPECT YOU TO SAY "Gawsh" or "Land Sakes" to this, but the Dizzy Deans are busting up housekeeping in Dallas. Maybe the advertisement in a Dallas journal isn't significant of anything more than Mr. Jerome and Mrs. Patricia are tired of their household gear, or expect to take permanent residence in compact quarters elsewhere. Still, a Dallas reader sends me the following clipping, culled from the Deans' hometown paper:

"Notice: I am sending my home furnishings to be sold Thursday night at 8 o'clock. (signed) Dizzy Dean."

The body of the ad then specifies a "Quality Auction" and cites an "imported, French, down-filled living room suite, several French chairs and a chaise longue, lamps, pictures, French twin and a full sized period bedroom suite. One very expensive inlaid walnut dining room set, large new refrigerator, a number of tasteful oriental rugs, et cetera."

J. F. Wheat, the auctioneer, adds this naive comment: "Friends, this is no junk; it's the best money can buy." What conclusions, if any, are to be drawn, are intensified by the fact that the Deans, man and wife, were proud of their household collection when I saw them last in Chicago and before that in Bradenton, Fla. The furniture, from the description, is the same that they owned in both places.

AT LONG LAST THE HEAD rule maker, Mr. Walter R. Okeson, has given official sanction to the much discussed end-zone tackle of Charley O'Rourke by Gene Goodreault in the 1939 Boston College-Holy Cross game. Until now there has always been a pro-and-con argumemnt as to whether Gene, by restraining Charley in his own end zone as he attempted to run out an H. C. kickoff, had violated the rule forbidding "helping the ball carrier."

Obeson in a rules bulletin, issued periodically through the season to college officials, states, "An official would not have been justified in calling a foul" . . . because the teammate (Goodreault) hindered rather than helped the runner (O'Rourke) . . . it could just as well be assumed that the runner might have run for a touchdown or for a long gain." Q. E. D.

THE EXPECTED SELL-OUT OF FENWAY Park's 39,700 football seats for Georgetown-B. C. a 20,000 crowd for B. C.-Auburn and another 35,000 at the B. C. Holy Cross game will bring Boston College's turnstile total for 1940 to 225,000—equivalent to the combined population of Worcester and Waltham. Word from the Heights athletic office to those wanting Georgetown-B. C. seats is, "Get 'em quick and don't ask where they are."

following running of the sixth race in which Master Key, on outside with Jockey Eddie Connolly up, beat Mon Time, on the inside, with Jockey Ted Atkinson at the controls.

"Why did you come over on Atkinson's horse?" asked Tom Thorp of Jockey Connolly.

"My horse was lugging in and I couldn't get him off," replied the jockey.

"Why did you grab Atkinson's leg with your hand?" queried Thorp.

"I didn't grab Athinson's leg," answered Connolly . . . "I was trying to push my horse off Atkinson's horse."

"From where we watched the race in the stand we saw you grab at Atkinson's leg," said Thorp.

"Connolly grabbed at me and I kept yelling at him to push against the horse rather than against me," said Atkinson . . . "I pushed Connolly off . . . I had to do so to protect myself."

The stewards disqualified Master Key and suspended Connolly.

Bowdoin at Peak For Maine Clash

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 7—Bowdoin will be at full strength for the first time this year and ready for its battle with the University of Maine here next Saturday afternoon.

The charges of Adam Walsh are particularly anxious to take this encounter for it not only means that the Polar Bears will be assured of a tie for the Maine State title but that Bowdoin will avenge last year's upset at the hands of the Orono team.

Last year the Bears apparently had the title clinched. All they had to do was beat Maine which did not look too tough and take the championship but the Brice coached team came through with an upset and Bowdoin had to share the title with Colby.

If Bowdoin wins Saturday it will give the school two victories and a tie in this series which will mean no less than a deadlock.

The remaining game of this series takes place Monday between Colby and Bates.

Right at present Colby is tied with Bowdoin with a victory and tie and will windup even with Bowdoin if both should win.

A Bowdoin loss, though, would be disastrous for it would eliminate the Bears and leave the decision until Monday. Colby would take the title alone on a win for a tie while Bates would take everything if the Bobcats could upset Colby.

CORNELL ACE HURT

One of the greatest to ever carry the mail, and I don't mean your friendly letter carrier, was . . . Special Delivery Al Marsters, Dartmouth All-American triple threat ten years ago . . . as a sophomore the tall, dark, and handsome Marsters revealed his future promise in the Harvard game when he skirted the ends and tight-roped down the sidelines to help run up a 30-6 win . . . in his senior year of '29 Harvard bowed, 34-7, before the wizardry of Marsters who alone gained 240 yards, and in his last college game against Yale the Special Delivery Kid brought his team up from a 10-0 deficit to a 12-10 advantage by his slashing drives off tackle and brilliant passing . . . Mississippi Squad Flies to Worcester

ATLANTA, Nov. 7 (AP)—Thirty-five University of Mississippi football players left in two planes today for Worcester, Mass., where they meet Holy Cross Saturday in an intersectional game.

It will be the 15th Eastern invasion for Coach Harry Mehre, who, in three years, has made Mississippi one of the great football powers of the Southeastern Conference.

Mehre has a record of ten victories against four losses against four Eastern teams, which includes his former tenure as coach at the University of Georgia.

Mississippi's attack, which is built around two speedy backs, Merle Hapes and Junie Hovious, has bowled over six opponents this year, including Louisiana State, Georgia, Duquesne and Vanderbilt. A 21-20 defeat by Arkansas is the only mar on the Rebels' record.

They beat Louisiana State, 19-6, while the Louisianans trimmed Holy Cross, 25-0.

In tackling Holy Cross, the Mississippians will try to recoup some of the prestige Southeastern elevens have lost this season to Eastern teams. Tulane lost to Boston College and Fordham, Vanderbilt to Princeton, Florida to Villanova, Georgia to Columbia and Sewanee to Dartmouth. Besides L. S. U.'s win over Holy Cross, Kentucky defeated George Washington and Mississippi won over Duquesne.

Mehre said Arkansas and Vanderbilt, the Rebels last two opponents, "played their best games of the season against us. I hope Holy Cross doesn't follow suit."

Dartmouth Polishes For Princeton Tilt

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 7 (INS)—Coach Earl Blaik ordered a final home ground practice today before Dartmouth shoves off for Princeton tomorrow. A heavy scrimmage against the freshman line left Blaik well satisfied.
